Allowing the CNMI to be part of the process in controlling the allocation of CW-1 number is among the things that Gov. Ralph DLG Torres and the Commonwealth panel in the 902 talks are requesting from their counterparts from the federal government.

Torres said that having a control of allocation on the number of foreign workers was among the issues discussed during the second round of 902 talks held in Hawaii this year. Having control would prevent companies and other businesses to abuse and misuse it.

Last week, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security set the fiscal year 2017 CW-1 cap to 12,998. Torres said that reducing the num-

The proclamation was made in order to pay homage to the many lives that were lost during the 9/11 incident, including the various members of the law enforcement officers, firefighters, police, first responders, Micronesia Islands Nature Alliance's annual fundraising party, the Green Gala, was a smashing success last Sept. 2 at the Fiesta Resort & Spa with the party having sold out tickets.

Green Gala is the annual fundraising event that is highly anticipated by the community as well local businesses. The aim of the Green Gala is to fund the various conservation efforts hosted by MINA.

Frankie Eliptico, chairperson for MINA's board of directors, said the turnout for the event got him excited and made him look forward to the upcoming conservation programs. "I am excited about the turnout; we sold out tickets a couple days ago. There was such an overwhelming support from the community. We are so happy," said an enthusiastic Eliptico. "We are excited that there are so many people who support MINA. More than anything, we are thankful to our sponsors, because it is their generosity that allows us to continue the Green Gala year after year. It is the most highly anticipated event of the year."

Becky Furey, the interim executive director of MINA, shared her joy after seeing the overflowing crowd at the Green Gala. "The overwhelming support of the community, like we announced earlier, the event was sold out and just even having a soldout fundraising event is amazing," said Furey. "Having the continuous support of community businesses, members, and even schools, makes me absolutely happy."

MINA Project manager Kodep Ogumoro-Uludong was quick to mention that the Green Gala was a joint effort. "The Green Gala is a team effort led by our board members and are supported by staff. It is our signature fundraising event to help support our various programs and projects," said Ogumoro-Uludong.

He also shares that despite lacking manpower, MINA gets non-monetary support from the local government and various other entities on the island.

"MINA is made up of only four full-time staff. We have various projects that we implement that also require collaboration with various partners on the island. That includes Department of Land and Natural Resources, Bureau of Environmental and Coastal Quality, Marianas Visitors Authority, and more. Through these partnerships, we are able to implement projects that really address our natural resources and their conservation," said Ogumoro-Uludong.

MINA is a non-profit organization aiming for the conservation of the natural resources of the CNMI for future generations.

IN ONGOING TRIAL OF CHEN OVER 4.9 LBS OF 'ICE' SHIPMENT

Leader of group testifies Chen not aware of drugs; defense also rests

By FERDIE DE LA TORRE
ferdie_delatorre@saipantribune.com
REPORTER

Xi Huang, the leader of a group behind the shipment of 4.9 lbs of methamphetamine or "ice" worth $850,000, testified on Friday in federal court that his co-defendant Zhao-peng Chen was not involved in their drug deal.

After Huang's testimony, attorney David G. Banes, counsel for Chen, informed U.S. District Court for the NMI Chief Judge Ramona V. Manglona on Friday at 2:05pm that the defense rests. Banes then renewed his motion for judgment of acquittal, but Manglona denied it.

Manglona excused one juror, but did not explain the reason. The judge ordered the remaining 12 jurors to come back tomorrow, Tuesday, at 8:30am, for the continuation of Chen's trial.

Manglona is expected to provide jury instructions tomorrow, Tuesday, to be followed by the parties' closing arguments, then jury deliberations.

The judge allowed Huang to testify after the prosecution agreed to give him immunity pertaining to his testimony.

On Thursday, Manglona disallowed Huang to testify until he talks with his new court-appointed counsel.

Huang was taken to court on Thursday after defense counsel Banes summoned him to testify. Huang stated he was willing to testify to tell the truth behind the "ice" shipment.

Manglona then explained Huang's rights considering that he is appealing his case to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Huang then stated he needs to see his new appointed counsel before testifying. Attorney Colin Thompson was appointed as his new counsel. Attorney Robert T. Torres served as his court-appointed counsel in the case, while attorney Stephen Nutting filed his appeal to the Ninth Circuit. Huang stated that he never met Nutting, but that he is aware that his father was working on his appeal.

The indictment charged Chen, Huang, and Shicheng Cai with conspiracy with intent to distribute methamphetamine. Huang and Cai both pleaded guilty. Huang was recently slapped with 188 months imprisonment. Cai, who has yet to be sentenced, testified for the U.S. government.

In his testimony on Friday, Huang, through a translator, corroborated co-defendant Cai's testimony that Cai was in charge in China to receive and pack the "ice" shipment, and pick up the drugs on Saipan.

Huang agreed with assistant U.S. attorney Garth Backe during cross-examination that he instructed Cai to pick up the drugs at Sunleader Market's warehouse near As Terlaje Hill on Dec. 4, 2015 because he was scared to do it by himself.

Huang said it was Cai who was willing to pick up the drugs on Saipan. Huang said he also "listened" to other people behind the shipment.

Backe told Huang he is the boss, but the latter replied that he does not know if he was the boss.

Huang also stated that he is not Cai's boss.

of bad checks, deceptive business practices, identity theft, and misconduct in public office.

The CNMI Office of the Public Auditor conducted the investigation.

Among the allegations is that Hocog used Rota Municipal Treasurer checks to purchase cases of beer for her own benefit and to play poker. She also allegedly forged the signature of Lt. Gov. Victor Hocog's son, Victor Val, on a business license application for VAL's Enterprise.

At a hearing on Friday at 4:45pm, Superior Court Associate Judge Teresa Kim-Tenorio maintained the $50,000 cash bail, but allowed Hocog to post 10 percent or $5,000 cash plus some conditions.

Kim-Tenorio noted that the defendant holds a government position and that although the charges are not violent, the court will take into consideration the 10 charges that involve corruption or public office trust.

Kim-Tenorio set the preliminary hearing for Sept. 13 at 1:30pm and the arraignment for Sept. 26 at 9am.

Assistant attorney general Matthew Baisley, counsel for the government, requested a bail of $25,000 cash, but stated that the government has no objection for 10 percent or only $2,500 cash as long as the defendant surrenders her travel documents.

The judge, however, increased it to $50,000 cash, but allowed the defendant to post 10 percent or $5,000 cash.

Attorney Matthew Holley, counsel for Hocog, requested the release of the defendant and allow her to post the cash on Tuesday.

The judge denied such arrangement.

Holley said Hocog does not pose danger to the community and is not a flight risk.

OPA investigator Juan M. Santos stated in his report that the investigation began when an anonymous caller provided information last July 8 that Hocog abused and misused funds under the Rota Imprest Funds and the Rota Municipal Treasurer Account for her own personal gain and benefit.

Hocog allegedly would write Rota Municipal Treasurer checks to "cash" to co-worker's name, family's names, or her boyfriend's name.

The government checks were allegedly used at Sunshine Variety Store, TJ Enterprise dba Safeway Store, Poker Arcade, Rota 3Kings Market Too/Harvest Store all located in Songsong, Rota, and at Ming Yang Store located on Saipan.

Several of the Rota Municipal Treasurer's (RMT) checks allegedly used by Hocog were returned due to insufficient funds.

OPA investigator Santos said that on Dec. 27, 2015, Hocog used a RMT check to purchase seven cases of beer at Sunshine Store and sold them at a cockfight derby.

Hocog allegedly kept the sale proceeds for her own personal benefit.

On that same day, Hocog allegedly used RMT checks to play poker at Poker Arcade.

Investigator Santos said that an owner of two Rota stores confirmed that they received RMT check, but only to be returned by the bank due to insufficient funds.

The two stores' accounting staff then contacted Hocog about the returned checks, but the defendant advised the accountant that the funds were not yet available.

Hocog allegedly advised the accountant to redeposit the returned checks at the bank.

The two stores' owner also disclosed that the owner of TJ Enterpriss dba Safeway Market told her that she too had experienced about one or two transactions with Hocog involving the use of RMT checks that the bank returned for insufficient funds.

Santos said that last Aug. 8, the Joint Task Force composed of OPA, Department of Public Safety, and Attorney General's Investigation Division initiated the investigation at the Rota Finance Office.

Santos said the owners of the stores provided information and copies of RMT checks.

Santos said a witness stated that he saw Hocog use RMT check to buy seven cases of beer and assorted drinks at Sunshine Store.

The witness also disclosed that he also witnessed Hocog use RMT checks on numerous occasions for her own benefit.

Another storeowner disclosed that when she encountered that Hocog used an RMT check that had insufficient funds, she brought the matter to Rota Mayor Efraim Atalig's attention.

The storeowner stated that Atalig said he would look into the matter and asked her to redeposit the same check.

The storeowner said the check was re-deposited at a later date and was cleared by the bank.

Santos said during an interview last Aug. 13, Hocog admitted to using RMT checks for her own benefits because she was desperate for money.

Hocog explained that under the RMT account, there are two accounts—for the Rota Casino Gaming Commission and the Miscellaneous Account.

Hocog allegedly admitted that all the money she embezzled using RMT checks were to help finance her children's needs and herself.

Santos said Hocog admitted taking $7,000 to $8,000 and that she informed Atalig last June about what she did.

Santos said according to Hocog, she later received a letter from the mayor placing her on administrative leave and she was then replaced by Sharon A. Manglona.

Santos said Hocog admitted to investigators of using other person's name on the RMT checks and that others also benefitted from the transactions because she was giving them money in return for cashing the RMT checks at various stores on Rota and on Saipan.

Hocog allegedly admitted that whenever funds are short and payments are to be paid out of the RMT account, she would give reason to delay and stall payments until she received her paycheck to cover the shortfall of funds.

Hocog also allegedly admitted to using open accounts to obtain items or goods at stores for her personal use and benefit and charged them under Rota Finance's or the mayor office's account.

Hocog allegedly admitted that she ordered a Revenue and Taxation Office employee to process a business license in which she signed off for Val's Enterprise under Victor Val B. Hocog's name absent payment of a business license fee.

Hocog allegedly admitted to forging the signature of Victor Val Hocog on the business license application.

Investigator Santos said to date there has been no payments of this business license fee under the owner's name.

Santos said Rota Finance Office under Hocog's control also processed three payments totaling $3,000.

Two payments were processed in April 2016 for VAL's Enterprise.

Santos said one payment was processed in May 2016 which was deposited at Bank of Saipan, Rota Branch and then withdrawal of these funds were made at Bank of Saipan, Saipan main branch.

Santos said these checks were processed under Rota Imprest Fund Account.

Santos said investigation and collected evidence revealed that from July 2015 to May 2016, Hocog embezzled between $15,000 and $20,000 from the Miscellaneous Account and the Rota Imprest Fund Account.

Cai earlier testified that Huang was his boss in this "ice" shipment.

Huang said Chen had his wife's cellphone number because of a hotel reservation. He stated that Chen was not aware that he was going to Saipan.

According to U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration special agent Kirk F. Johns, Huang and Cai both arrived on Saipan from Shanghai, China, while Chen arrived with his wife on Dec. 2, 2015. Customs inspectors discovered the contraband hidden in one of nine paint buckets during a routine inspection of a shipping container on Dec. 2, 2015.

On the question why Chen came to Saipan, Huang replied that the prosecutor needs to ask Chen about it.

Backe told Huang that Chen stated he came to Saipan to shop for jewelry and for tourism.

Huang answered that Chen told him that he came to Saipan because he has couple of girls who can work for karaoke.

Huang said it was only an "accident" that Chen was with him when he and Cai were picking up the shipment of drugs on Saipan.

Huang agreed with Backe that Chen was with him when they rented a green Mazda 2, where Cai put the paint bucket that supposed to contain the "ice."

Huang also agreed that Chen was in his and Cai's hotel room at Summer Holiday in Garapan when Cai called a person at Sunleader as to when to pick up the "merchandise" at the warehouse.

Backe asked if Chen never asked what's going on why they keep on following Cai's car, why they were talking to a "stranger" at Sunleader, and why they rented a green Mazda car.

Huang said Chen did not ask. He reiterated that Chen's presence at those times was just accident.

"I really did not tell him about it [drugs]," said Huang through an interpreter.

"This whole thing is only me and Cai. He (Chen) did not get a single penny," Huang said.

Huang said he thought that he would not get arrested because what he did was not dangerous as he was only providing instructions to Cai about the drugs.

Huang explained why his plea agreement with the U.S. government was cancelled, but that he still subsequently pleaded guilty without the plea deal. He said the reason why his plea deal was canceled because he did not want to testify against Chen.

Huang said he's saying from the very beginning that Chen was not involved in this "ice" shipment.

Huang agreed with Banes that he got a longer sentence after he did not agree to testify against Chen.

On Thursday, Cai testified for the U.S. government about how they shipped the "ice" to Saipan from China, how they concealed the drugs in one of nine paint buckets, and about Chen's role in picking up the drug shipment.

Cai, however, agreed with Banes during cross-examination that he is not sure that Chen knew about the drug deal between Cai and Huang.

ber of guest workers is stated under the law and is thankful for DHS reducing it to only one rather than a large number.

"Thank you for the only one deduction. But the law is to reduce it to zero, how would they expect our economy to grow when our CW-1 workers [are reduced] to zero? When we're having difficulty to meet the labor demand? We are not even part of the participation process," said Torres.

"That's why we're asking U.S. Congress to amend the law. We have pleaded our case that if that law continues, it would devastate the whole CNMI not just economically but also socially. That's the reason why we are asking to increase the number of CW-1," added Torres.

Bringing the CW-1 number back to 18,000 is another thing that the CNMI panel is asking for to sustain the economic gains that the Commonwealth has been experiencing. "We think that 18,000 is what we need to be our workforce to be successful."

"I know that the USCIS has an obligation, so do we. That the law says that we have to zero out by 2019 but how can we meet the needs of incoming businesses," said Torres

"On the other hand, we still have a whole year to work to increase that number through legislation," said Torres. Giving back to the U.S. Labor Secretary the authority for extension and asking for a 10-year extension are the other things that the CNMI wanted.

Torres, in an earlier interview, said that CNMI immigration is a federal issue. "We don't handle our immigration. But we—both the government

Cancer awareness group looking for betel nut chewers

By JON PEREZ

jon_perez@saipantribune.com
REPORTER

The Commonwealth Cancer Association is looking for volunteer betel nut chewers to be part of a betel nut intervention trial program in collaboration with the University of Guam Cancer Research Center.

The University of Hawaii Cancer Research Center is UOG's partner after the National Cancer Institute awarded the partnership with close to $27 million in research grants, money that would fund their various programs until 2020.

CCA program director Juan L. Babauta said their agency will administer the betel nut intervention program in cooperation with UOG through project principal investigator Dr. Yvette C. Paulino, who was on Saipan early this year to present the findings of her study on betel nut chewing.

Dr. Robert A. Underwood and Dr. Rachel T. Leon Guerrero are the general principal investigators of the Cancer Research Grant.

"The betel nut project is a collaborated project with CCA and UOG, which is doing a betel nut intervention trial. The research is similar to the tobacco association program," said Babauta, in last week's proclamation signing of the Childhood and Prostate Cancer Month.

"The CCA office will be made the contact point where those who would like to be involved with this program should get in touch with us," added Babauta.

CCA board vice president Maggie C. Camacho said that a lot of betel nut chewers still do not believe what it can do for them. "There are still a lot of people who do not believe that betel nut chewing can do harm to them. And [betel nut] chewing is very prevalent amongst the youngsters. It is said that it starts from the youngsters."

"I just get goosebumps whenever I see oral cancer patients. And a lot of them do not believe that it could happen to them. [Oral cancer] is growing to become the No. 2 cancer type in the CNMI."

That's why the CCA is asking the Gov. Ralph DLG Torres to finally sign House Bill 19-65 or the act "to prohibit sale of betel nut (areca nut) to any person who is under the age of 18." The CCA is hoping the community would be more attentive this time to help prevent oral cancer.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Lorenzo I. Deleon Guerrero (Ind-Saipan) and Vinson E.

Sablan (Ind-Saipan), had already passed the House and the Senate.

CCA is a community-based nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization dedicated to promoting cancer awareness and prevention, providing patient support services, and serving as the liaison and advocate for cancer issues in the CNMI and the region.

It began as a coalition of volunteers who are committed to reducing the burden of cancer in the islands. These volunteers serve on the CCA board, help raise funds, and participate in training, outreach, and patient support programs.

Torres: Legislature has power to abolish CUC board

Gov. Ralph DLG Torres said that it would take the Legislature to act in abolishing the current board of the Commonwealth Utilities Corp., which had been riddled with issues regarding water distribution and failure to fund the improvements needed to efficiently serve the public.

Torres said he wants the board to be more effective when it comes to making decisions. "I don't have the authority to abolish the board. It is the Legislature that has the authority to abolish the board."

"There have been lawsuits filed against the board and I do have some issues with the CUC's progress. I would like to see more aggressive in their decision-making," said Torres.

He added that his administration would work with the board to address the concerns. "We've been working together to address those concerns. I will be meeting again with the board this week to further discuss those concerns that I spoke about during my prior meeting with them."

His administration is also in communication with the Attorney General's Office if there is a legal way to abolish the board. He, however, did not divulge other details since they are still in consultation with the AG's Office.

The administration has received some information that there is no legal process that the governor can completely abolish the board.

One way that the government is seeing is not renewing the terms of the members of the board or if they failed to have a quorum in their meetings.

The administration said it is becoming clear now that it won't be legally possible to abolish or dissolve the board. They, however, remain in communication with the AG's Office on what are the other options. (Jon Perez)

ON WORKER'S LAWSUIT OVER CRANE ACCIDENT

Construction company denies it was at fault

A construction company has denied it has fault over a crane accident that caused injuries to its former construction worker at the site of Best Sunshine International, Ltd.'s Grand Mariana Casino & Hotel Resort.

MCC International Saipan Ltd. Co., through counsel Michael W. Dotts, asserted that any injuries suffered or damages sustained by plaintiff Anwar Hossain were caused solely by the latter's own negligence.

In MCC International's answer and defenses to Hossain's lawsuit, Dotts said the claims are precluded or limited by the Worker's Compensation laws and that plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies.

Dotts said MCC gives notice that it had no duty to protect Hossain from "any illegal acts committed by others that may have given rise to the alleged injuries and/or damages" that plaintiff suffered.

Dotts said his client gives notice that it intends to rely on the defense of "no duty to warn of an obvious danger."

The lawyer said MCC did not proximately cause Hossain's alleged injuries and damages.

He said the negligence of MCC, if any, "was passive and not active," and may have "merely furnished the condition which was merely a circumstance of the events" that Hossain complained of.

Dotts said MCC admits that it has not paid for Hossain's medical expenses, but denies other allegations in the complaint.

Hossain filed the lawsuit in federal court over the crane accident that caused a long and heavy pipe to roll, crushing his left leg at Best Sunshine's hotel and casino project site in Garapan last February.

Hossain, through counsel William M. Fitzgerald, is suing MCC for allegedly violating the Workmen's Compensation Law and for negligence.

Hossain asked the U.S. District Court for the NMI to hold MCC International liable to pay him $200,000 in lost wages and medical expenses, and $300,000 in non-economic damages, plus punitive damages in an amount to be determined at trial. (Ferdie de la Torre)

Ex-convict gets 6 months in prison for stealing truck parts, then truck itself

An ex-convict was slapped with a six-month prison term for stealing parts of a pickup truck and eventually the truck itself from a dive shop in Susupe.

Superior Court Associate Judge Teresa Kim-Tenorio last week sentenced Thomas T. Matsunaga to two years imprisonment, all suspended except six months, for the offense of theft.

Matsunaga, 51, was given credit for time served of 95 days.

After serving the prison term, the defendant will be placed on probation for two years and required, among other conditions, to pay restitution to the victim, Byung Hwan Kim, in the amount of $1,000 and to Motion Auto Repair Shop in the amount of $480 before the expiration of his probationary period.

Matsunaga was ordered to pay a $100 fine, $25 court assessment fee, plus probation fee, and perform 100 hours of community work service, attend narcotics anonymous meetings, and write a letter of apology to Kim.

The amended information charged Matsunaga with theft and criminal mischief. He and counsel assistant public defender Cindy Nesbit signed a plea deal with the government. The defendant pleaded guilty to the offense of theft.

Assistant attorney general Heather Barcinas appeared for the government.

According to the factual basis of the plea deal, Matsunaga unlawfully stole Kim's red 1997 T-100 truck, including its rear differential, between May 20 and 23, 2016 on Saipan.

Police said it was Matsunaga's brother who called the police because the victim is his tenant. The brother also complained that the suspect stole two of his 18,000 BTU split type air-conditioners and three window type air-conditioners. Police later traced the stolen red Toyota T 100 to an auto repair shop in Illiyan, where they found out that they towed the truck after that Matsunaga sold it for $350.

Police learned that it was Matsunaga who called the auto repair shop and sold the truck for $350. The shop bought the truck to use its parts.

The shop didn't think that there's problem with the truck because it was parked at Matsunaga's residence. (Ferdie de la Torre)

'Next Top Chef' will also help in marketing NMI'

Organizers of the this year's CNMI's Next Top Chef is looking to have the winner serve as a representative of the Commonwealth in various international events, which in turn would also help in marketing the islands and attract more tourists.

Empty Vessel Ministry Foundation has organized the annual event for the past three years supported by local businesses. However, for the fourth edition, they will be partnering with the Hotel Association of the Northern Mariana Islands.

EVM director Rose Smith said that they plan to have the winner also supporting their various programs and activities. "This is our fourth annual competition and it has been a fundraising event for Empty Vessel."

"This will be our first year to partner with HANMI after coming to an agreement with them. With HANMI we are able to realize our dream of doing a better competition," said Smith, who added that the Marianas Visitors Authority will also be involved.

She said the competition also serves as EVM's fundraising event. "We are so honored in partnering with HANMI, which made it into a fundraiser to support our programs and activities."

"The chefs sharing their skills for a good cause makes us happy. The winner will represent our organization and will advocate its activities. It is also our wish that the winner will be sent off-island to market the CNMI aside from advocating what our organization does," said Smith.

Catherine Rosario Perry Harris, who spoke in HANMI's behalf, said they would like to help in making the competition one of the hotel group's signature events. "It is something that we want to continue to do with them and HANMI is happy for the opportunity."

"HANMI was supposed to celebrate its 30th anniversary last year but it got cancelled because of Typhoon Soudelor. Now this will be the 31st, Empty Vessel approached us if we could help in hosting the event. We saw it is a good opportunity to support and celebrate our 31st anniversary."

Event organizers are still working on the details of the competition, but it will be open to all professional and amateur chefs, who will be competing in separate categories. "We may be able to finalize the other details in another meeting next week," said Harris.

The competition was supposedly set on Sept. 24 at the Pacific Islands Club, but they moved it to a still undetermined date in November, but this time at a bigger venue—the Saipan World Resort.

Organizers said it will be an extra ordinary culinary evening as each hotel chef will be asked to prepare a dish that will be part of the regular buffet and another that will be prepared on site. They added that Kagman High School's culinary class students would be assisting the chefs.

Best Sunshine International, Ltd., Bridge Capital LLC, Triple J, Mariana Resort & Spa, IT&E, and KKMP are the other sponsors and partners of the competition.

DOI provides funds to strengthen capacity for CW Program

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Assistant Secretary for Insular Areas Esther Kia'aina last week approved a $200,000 grant for the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands to create a team of labor certification technicians and a statistician at the Department of Labor to help collect, compile, and analyze crucial data on the CNMI-Only Transitional Worker (CW) Program, which is set to expire on Dec. 31, 2019.

The CNMI is in a transition and working to build a stronger local and U.S. workforce before the CW Program expires. Funding provided through the Office of Insular Affairs Technical Assistance Program will enable the territory to obtain information on job categories currently held by CW workers and monitor losses and gains in particular job fields. The funding also helps the CNMI to develop a strategic plan to provide real-time data on the most in-demand job fields and valuable information needed by decision-makers in allocating limited training and workforce development resources.

"This funding is direly needed to fill job data gaps, strengthen the capacity of the CNMI government to train the workers that are most needed, and assist the governor and his team in navigating through this transition period," said Kia'aina. "I am pleased to help address this long-standing issue and look forward to further meetings of the 902 Consultations process, which has provided our federal team, composed of officials from the Departments of the Interior, Defense and Homeland Security, a better appreciation of the importance of the CW program to the CNMI's economy and its impact on people's lives."

"Through the coordination and efforts of the Obama Administration, the CNMI has been granted a tremendous opportunity to air and discuss the most critical issues facing our relationship with the federal government through the 902 Consultations process," stated Gov. Ralph DLG Torres. "This grant award provided by the Office of Insular Affairs is a product of these discussions and recognizes that we can work collaboratively to achieve our goals for the people and the economy of the CNMI. The funding provides the CNMI Department of Labor the resources to work toward the adequate and positive transition of our workforce and I thank Assistant Secretary Kia'aina for her recognition of our needs and her willingness to work together for the people of our islands."

Kia'aina was appointed as the U.S. Special Representative for Section 902 Consultations by President Obama on May 19, 2016, following a request by Torres, the CNMI's Special Representative, and the late governor Eloy S. Inos to initiate the process. At the first meeting held in June 2016, at the White House, the U.S. and CNMI Special Representatives agreed to focus on: 1) the expiration of the CNMI-Only Transitional Worker Program in 2019; and 2) proposed U.S. Department of Defense military activities in the CNMI. A second meeting was held in August.

The special representatives have agreed to hold the third round of 902 Consultations in the Northern Mariana Islands on Oct. 1, 2016. (PR)

Celebrate Labor Day like it's 1840—no multitasking

We interrupt the frenzied 2016 political season with reflections on the presidential campaign of 1840. This may change the way you choose to spend Labor Day weekend:

Ahead of that distant year's contest with Democratic incumbent Martin Van Buren, William Henry Harrison did not attend the Whig Party convention in Harrisburg, Pa. He stayed home on his Ohio estate. He found out he'd won the nomination ... a week later. There was no telegraph yet, and railroads were in their infancy. No one seemed in any rush to break the story. Harrison simply picked up his copy of the Cincinnati Gazette one morning and noticed a brief article stating that, oh, he'd been nominated for the presidency.

After finally getting official notification, Harrison sat down and wrote a letter of acceptance, according to "The Carnival Campaign," a new book about that race by Ronald G. Shafer.

Another fact from the book about the pace of life back then: A Whig named James Brooks visited Harrison at home in North Bend, Ohio, during the summer of 1840. You might have thought Harrison would be, you know, out on the hustings talking to voters. But no, Harrison, who loved to entertain, was there because it was viewed as unseemly for a presidential candidate to talk too much about himself. Brooks, editor of the pro-Whig New York Express, intended to spend a day at North Bend, but Harrison persuaded him to remain a week. "Seldom if ever have I passed any time of my life more agreeably," wrote Brooks, who obviously also had no other pressing appointments.

Do you get the sense those guys operated at a slower rhythm than today's candidates and second-by-second news cycle?

The point of Shafer's book is that the Van Buren-Harrison matchup was the first modern presidential campaign (Harrison eventually stumped to huge crowds). But one also could view the 1840 race as one of the last to operate according to the natural pace of olden times. By 1844, Samuel Morse had developed the telegraph. By 1860, morning papers could break the news of Abraham Lincoln's election. Then things really picked up.

By 1869, a neurologist named George Beard was diagnosing a condition in Americans called neurasthenia, which was basically a combination of stress and information overload. Beard, according to a recent article in The Atlantic, believed the modern world was causing burnout. He blamed "steam power, the periodical press, the telegraph, the sciences, and the mental activity of women."

OK, there's nonsense at the end of that list, but Beard was on to something with the basic idea. Modern-day neurologist Daniel J. Levitin, in his book "The Organized Mind," notes that information overload and multitasking overstimulate the brain, causing mental fog and scrambled thinking. The overtaxed brain produces too much of the stress

Q. WHAT'S THE PERFECT LOCATION FOR DONALD TRUMP'S BORDER WALL?

Power of 'We The People'

In a democracy, the most powerful is "we the people." There's nothing else beyond the "will" of the people. The issue emerged when former senator David Cing disagreed with attempts by the gaming commission to litigate certain issues in the Tinian Gaming law.

So you don't confuse the issue, you begin by reading the initiative approved by a majority of voters on Tinian. The only other people who could change the casino law is, yes, the will of "we the people." The fact that the people took the issue into their hands (lacking trust in their legislative representatives) is a tale that their collective voice is the only vehicle to changing the fundamental casino law it approved.

To brave litigating an issue that would fundamentally shift the intent of what the people approved would be a blatant violation of what's now law. I venture to say the court would say go back to the people and seek for their consent. Their will is the ultimate power in a democracy.

Obviously, if you think certain changes may be worth the effort then begin another initiative that addresses constructive concerns you may wish to see changed. You can't alter the fundamental expression of the people in the initiative it approved in a plebiscite.

Done, none, gone!

Magoo has been studying the performance records of declared candidates (incumbent and newcomers). He puts a name on a sheet of paper, draws a line down the middle and places work "done," "none," career "gone!"

Most of the incumbents have nothing to show per Magoo's findings. He complains that he's never seen such dismally humiliating record of failure! "And when you ask them for answers 'dey look de odda way.'" Well, was he expecting rhyme and reason to engage in some healthy discussion on issues with Da Boy-sis on the hill?

Regurgitation: Because of the obvious lack of relevant issues to present with credibility, the fractious republicans are into regurgitation: bringing up swallowed food to chew once more like cows in a pasture at night. It includes the establishment of new political status commission and abolition of DPL. I would address these issues later in greater detail.

Like my Uncle Rudy insisted, Mr. Incumbent, please show us your accomplishments. Now if you're a brave newcomer, share with us your academic and professional credentials that factually prepared you to do policymaking work. At least give us a clue what's up your sleeves!

Yes, I have been critical of the elected elite for legitimate reasons. Uppermost is the fact that for every year of negligence, you force the livelihood of families in the villages three years back. Eh, did you get this braddah? So far the toxic republican prized trophy is about sixty years in arrears! Halo? Your abysmal performance and sterling record of failure are fodder for comedy, nothing else!

Clueless: Listening to spouts of politicians on any given issue presents opportunities to tell if he or she is conversant of issues under discussion.

The poised employ thoughtful answers and expresses views with a sense of humility. The eggheads are quite quick firing their guns through their holsters. Desperation!

An educated viewpoint is what voters yearn to hear from legislators braving articulating issues if at all. I'm not interested in disoriented spouts where we begin quizzing: And we're placing our future at their feet? Let's see you engage in educated discussion what's the single most vital issue that has forced suffering among villagers. And, what have you done to mitigate the village hardship?

Don't born... Simple folks are tired of the re-election scheme fostered almost instantly by shallow politicians after an election—resetting for re-election. And so there emerges real time questions from the voters this time around. Why is this raw reaction from villagers?

The poor folks had to put up with a myriad of costs going up on all corners while family pocketbooks remain the same for over 20 years. And you have the gall to ask for re-election? Is your sterling "Do-Nothing" performance a reason to re-elect you? You have nothing to show for yourself and you want our votes once again? Eh, like my friend Magoo said, "I don't born yesterday, braddah!"

The chorus is often heard throughout the villages with the simple folks saying, "No Mas." How interesting though the deftly deaf incumbents who don't seem to hear the voice of their people. Is there a reason for this?

Yes! They've kept their distance and raw detachment on issues that matter to the people they've ignored over the last year and-a-half or so. One more "biba" isn't going to cut it either. But tons of "biliba" are coming your way!

Issues ignored: Understandably, candidates who are clueless of relevant issues adversely affecting the villagers aren't about

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Our dying culture and a democracy that's blooming next door

I wrote about this once before but nobody seemed to care when I said our democracy was in ICU or in the Intensive Care Unit. Well our democracy died since the last election and needs to be resuscitated in case no one noticed so we continue to travel a treacherous road following “unchecked” leaders who don’t always do the right thing for people. The only check that is being placed on members of the Legislature and the Executive Branch are the checks being made by private citizens, as there is no opposition party on Capitol Hill. America’s democracy was founded on the principle of being an adversarial government that would be self-checking in the separation of powers and by the opposing interest groups that we have come to know as parties. Well, the CNMI in now past halfway into a second decade (18 years) of having a one-party government—meaning we no longer have a true and complete democracy and the democratic process for making laws is dead!

The only embedded principle of democracy that still exist in the CNMI is voting but when there is only one party it really doesn’t make any more sense to vote as everyone on the Hill and everyone running for office is a direct or indirect republican. This is not meant to be against the Republicans but to explain why people are soooooo feed up with our government and expressing their concern for corruption being everywhere. So I ask, why do we have only one party to represent the people? If you are expecting me to bash the GOP, I’m not because some of the things they have done are good, they just need to be kept in check to make sure things balance for the people. No checks and balance, no democracy it’s just that simple!

I was truly glad to see Reps. Lorenzo Deleon Guerrero and Ralph Yumul place a check by speaking up against the killing of the CUC board because the problem is not the board but the lack of the board operating as a true democracy—it’s the people, not the board. Everyone is a politically appointed agents on the board so the power of political appointment makes matters become personal creating a personality conflict football game hormone cortisol and fight-or-flight hormone adrenaline. Levitin quotes another expert saying: “When people think they’re multitasking, they’re actually just switching from one task to another very rapidly. And every time they do, there’s a cognitive cost in doing so.”

Get the point? Or were you distracted by your smartphone?

Perhaps Americans today live in an unnatural era, bombarded by news and overstimulated by instantaneous communication. We sometimes wonder, especially watching the current presidential race, if we’d get more done and think greater thoughts if we could live off the grid like William Henry Harrison. True, we had second thoughts after realizing Harrison died a month after taking office.

Still, this Labor Day weekend, we vow to take an hour or two to disconnect and see how it feels. We invite you to do the same and tell us about it, but no need to tweet or text.

Please, take your time.

to volunteer exposure in order to face the music, so to speak. They’re in shadows and the dark side of canopies at night where they hide to see if there’s any inclement weather. But let’s be frank about it, yeah?

The toxic republican performance failed family pocketbooks for over 20 years now. Or did you lift a finger to improve the depressed NMI economy that would have lifted all boats? Did you say “yes?” Louder, please? Could you name one specific action you took other than to amend the laws so you could also amass high paying jobs at Best Sunshine as a back-up when relegated by the voters? ### Civics Course:

Lesson I: We elected Republicans to help improve our livelihood.

They’ve failed!

Lesson II: End of Lesson! No Mas!

instead of solving the challenges and scoring for the people. Everything that CUC and our government does should stand on the merits but most of us with common sense know that is not the case or CUC and our government would be functioning perfectly. The CUC board just needs to function more democratically and professionally as the Guam power situation is blossoming while we are going nowhere and getting nothing done quick fast and in a hurry.

Yes, I am going to talk about the marijuana bill because it also helps to prove my point that the democratic process is dead! Sixto would have never got away with the ugly political play he made with legalization if there had been some Democrats in the Senate but all the senators are Republicans like him so he could figuratively get away with murder and no one would say a thing, especially doing election season. Again, this is not against the GOP, but our local good old boys and girls do need to take a page from the mainland GOP who will speak up when one of theirs is getting out of line. Sixto really screwed the Senate, the lower house, the Executive Branch, the sick and the rest of us around by not doing the work to get it on the ballot.

Guam did at least get something accomplished with legalization because their democracy is alive and well. Guam is really blooming which had a lot to do with the strong two-party system in Guam. The local culture is doing a lot better in Guam as politicians are constantly competing in their campaign on the issue of culture preservation as “competition breeds quality”—thanks to the late but great senator Angel Santos who truly put the local culture in the forefront of Guam’s politics permanently. We talk about culture but don’t do a darn thing while Guam has created an institute and a research center for teaching the culture and a well-developed Chamorro Village with a plethora of cultural sites, event, and activities for tourists. The culture is dying in the CNMI but all our leaders have thought about for improving the CNMI over the past decade has been the casino and nothing else because no one is sitting on the other side of the table to push new and different issues like legalization. The only real check and balance by citizens in the CNMI is the loyal and faithful citizens in the newspaper when their concerns need to be said by someone sitting at the Legislature’s table. Our GOP is not going to self-check its members and we the people will never see them fighting each other for us so we will continue to loose like we just lost four years of progress with legalization.

I am not mad at the GOP and in fact I believe some of them are trying to do their best but they need to speak up and get things done! I’m sure there are other ideas and means that are not being considered simply because they don’t come from the leadership in the GOP and that needs to stop. Bi-partisanship is a lost art for our politicians because there is no one on the other side so in a way we the people have been setting ourselves for failure on the Hill by not having a Democrat sitting at the table. We have the Covenant Republicans, the regular Republicans, and the independent Republicans but not a single Democrat—heller and people wonder why our government is like it is. Our democracy is dead and many don’t seem to even notice it or do they even care! Many of the local people with degrees who are best qualified to be in office simply take the easy way out and live the life on the mainland and I can’t blame them.

Who will make the sacrifice and step forward in the next election to do something great for the CNMI by running and winning as a Democrat to resurrect our democracy that is headed of the grave—one right person can make a difference. The GOP and the Democrats were magnificent at the conventions, now we need to see what the Democrats will do for the CNMI! I hope readers can now better understand why I was asking for the judges and PSS to say something because there is no one sitting on the other side of the table and the community needs to speak up in the absence of Democratic representation in the Legislature. The courts and PSS are fending for themselves in finding funding when legalization has the potential to be the answer.

But until our democracy is resurrected, us citizens will have to continue in our attempts to place a check on leaders who are not working for the people. If any GOP doesn’t like this blame it all on Sixto because he started this and inspired this playing politics with people like we are stupid and can’t fight back. He may have very well awakened a sleeping giant that could manifest itself in the next election. I’m writing this for the people because non one in the Senate stopped him and they had to know better given they all knew and contributed to the research I conducted for them. The senators are all good people but there is just too much “playing politically safe by avoiding issues and log rolling” when independent thinking and leadership needs to be in the forefront. Now the whole party is being scrutinized over what has become traditional marijuana legislation in America that should have been on the ballot this year with 23 other states—they are literally making us losers instead of winners! This is not meant to be a slap in the face to the GOP but to wake them up so they will bring their A-game and check their fellow GOP members and to allow others to contribute who are not GOP based on the merits and not the person—it’s called prejudice! Behind closed doors they were more loyal to Sixto than to the people they serve, me and proven research which is the real problem. We the people (patriotic citizens and community leaders) must step up to the challenge and restore our two-party system or we the people are doomed to a dead culture and democracy that’s blooming right next door—wake up and help before it’s too late.

OGA still applies to the Legislature

During the 2009 election, CNMI voters approved a popular initiative making the Open Government Act applicable to the CNMI Legislature, demonstrating a growing public concern about corruption in government. This was a result of the impeachment proceedings against former governor Fitial. The people of the CNMI were pleased with the actions of the vocal minority in the Legislature, at that time, but were obviously concerned about white collar crime at all levels of government.

However, when concerned citizen Glen Hunter filed a taxpayer’s lawsuit in May 2014 against the mechanism used by the Legislature to create casino gaming on Saipan, an assistant attorney general opined that the OGA is unconstitutional and cannot apply to the legislature.

Fortunately, on Feb. 25, 2015, the CNMI courts decided that members of the Legislature had violated the Open Government Act in the passage of Public Laws 18-38 and 18-43, also known as the Saipan casino law. They were forced to admit to the violation, re-write the law, and pass it again, legally.

This implies, then, that the OAG does apply to the Legislature.

So, then, why can’t we know how the Tinian Legislative Delegation overspent its budget by $40,000, and for what purpose Lt. Gov. Hocog gave them $40,000 in campaign bonus?

On what did they spend their entire budget, when nothing—zip, zero, zilch, nothing—is happening on Tinian? This island is dead, sent back into the dark ages, because Sen. Frank Borja, now president of the Senate, did not insist on getting direct flights to Tinian before voting to support casino gaming on Saipan?

And, what happened to that vocal minority that gained the respect of the people of Saipan back in 2012 and were rewarded with the majority? Are they now afraid of cleaning their own house?

The people of Tinian deserve to know what happened to their money. How exactly did the Tinian Delegation overspend by $40,000: first class travel, champagne, steak and lobster for dinner while campaigning all across America for absentee votes from voters who have no idea what is really happening on Tinian—while the real people of Tinian eat crackers?

On a positive note, congratulations to Rep. Ed Propst, who had the courage and conviction to stand up for what he believes in when he voted on the House budget bill—even though he knew it might make him a minority within the minority. This is the stuff of which President John Kennedy wrote in his award book Profiles in Courage.

A ‘pot’-full of issues

This is in response to Mr. Rudy M. Sablan’s “Your Plan-Version 1” letter to the editor where he might have inadvertently wrote in to include Anatahan as being part of a lease alongside Farallon de Medinilla and others.

To my knowledge and as a resident of Anatahan I would more than likely have raised some issues if it were to happen. But other than that try not to be some kind of freemason elite sending or writing messages to our so called CNMI litters (leaders) or to a specific “gayu” on what could be done because as far as I am concerned leasing out Anatahan to the U.S. military is not on the table. And if you are an honorable individual, please tread lightly and proofread before laying claims to somebody’s’ idea. In this case an idea from a full-blooded and born and raised Refaluwasch on the lovely island of Saipan and a resident of the pristine island of Anatahan.

On to our next issue is that of the marijuana legislation. First of let me just say that let us all agree to agree in one thing and that is that marijuana is a drug, right? Now let’s break the argument down into pieces so some or all our readers would more than likely agree to. We all can agree that both sides of the issue at hand have and continue to have studies on marijuana. Whether it be for medical and or recreational. The other issue to consider is the study group—the government (U.S. federal government) and the other are numerous independent study group. Let’s start with the independent study group. If we were to summarize their findings into one report, they would all more than likely agree or support marijuana medical and or recreational use, at least to my understanding. Given that they are funded independently and not by any government funds. Then we look to the one-sided government studies, in which most of their reports allege that

YESTERDAY'S SATELLITE IMAGE

PICTURE TIME: 3:46 AM, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 2016

Western North Pacific between equator and 25N from 130E to 180.

Gentle east winds and combined seas of 3-4 ft are present in the Marianas waters. Radar shows isolated showers, but no thunderstorms have been seen. Little has changed in the last 24 hrs, and the forecast is basically unchanged. The models show no significant weather features that would bring widespread rainfall, but there is enough moisture and instability to support random small-scale convective events. Marine conditions will remain benign with seas around 3 ft. A near-equatorial trough is present near Koror and Yap. Satellite imagery shows showers and thunderstorms across the area, the bulk being found southwest of Koror. Scattered showers this morning at both locations will gradually taper off this afternoon as a weak ridge develops over the area. Another surface trough near Chuuk will bring deteriorating conditions around Tuesday and Wednesday.

ISSUES

marijuana should and never be considered as a medical or recreational drug of choice, right?

Reasons that seem to point out that seem ludicrous, if I may say. Now if you will, let me try and have our readers agree to this, marijuana has and will continue to be the most studied drug in the whole world, I would say. The next argument would be what is marijuana? Well, let us all agree that marijuana is a drug same as Tylenol, Sudafed, Aspirin, and so forth. If we were to argue about it more, how about this? How is are drugs made? Marijuana is a natural drug that grows out of a seed when planted in the soil and nurtured 'till the most revered part, the buds as they call it, matures and gives of this scent which is comparable to a skunk odor or in our local community, the fruit bat smell.

If you want to get more acquainted to this scent given of by the magnificent fruit bat, I would recommend a visit to the Saipan Zoo where I believe, Mr. Frank Aldan can point you to one. The most commonly used and readily available drug would be Tylenol. I and most of our readers would most certainly agree that Tylenol is a drug manufactured, processed, and packaged. And as we all would agree any human made products are tainted with flaws to the point where death can be the immediate result if and or when not properly handled or in this case administered. Then another argument, we or our readers would agree on is that any drug has side effects whether it be conducive or non-conductive, if this were the appropriate term to use. Speaking from personal experience and from many study reports on the daily use of marijuana, peculiar side effects of marijuana use is that of the sense of euphoria and the immediate onset of hunger or the feeling of being hungry either for the munchies or such. Now if you were to ask me to explain euphoria—euphoria to me is like a sensation where you feel as if you are connected to each and every living thing that makes our world go on and on and on. Certain side effects on the daily use of Tylenol for example, is liver damage, period. As we all would certainly agree, a damaged liver is irreplaceable and or worse yet unrepairable, meaning certain death. To wrap up this issue so we can all agree to agree, I would like to recognize and give credit to our late and talented entertainment artist, Uncle David K. Peter. Whom in one of those moments where I would fondly keep his story alive as he sat and told it as it is. This argument is so much bigger if we were to fully comprehend why is it that marijuana will and continue to be a controversial drug of choice for the many or millions to be exact, who are currently or have passed on and or have recently been diagnosed with the ill-fated types of cancer. And that is, who are the people against the marijuana legislation if passed, will suffer? Makers of those readily and accessible drugs will be the ones, so much like they have just been diagnosed with cancer itself. Imagine if marijuana was readily available and accessible over the counter, huh? This other drugs of choice will dramatically see the light at the end of the tunnel I would say. But hey do not take my word for it. I am neither for nor against marijuana legislation.

despite many old and new advisors at the conference table his lack of knowledge, mixed message, knotty and inextricable they found his temperamental attitude twisted and inexpugnable as he continued more crude comments and insults despicable despite new information and sound bytes quoted in extenso he somehow bungled reading what the teleprompters said asked if he was speaking figuratively or sarcastically he said no and babbled on like a bobble top doll, off the top of his head and so on with more repetition into his repetitious campaign this puerile pattern continued day after day week after week as he obstinately refused to cease and desist or try to refrain from denigrating and insulting others every time he'd speak then came his immigration plan of "extreme extreme vetting" in November he'll find out how few Hispanic votes he's getting

American Memorial Park encourages all fourth graders to visit the park this year as part of the Every Kid in a Park program.

Superintendent Jim Richardson said, "There's so much to discover at American Memorial Park and we're excited to welcome fourth graders and their families throughout the year. We hope that our young visitors learn and have fun in the great outdoors and develop a life-long connection to our nation's land, water, and wildlife."

American Memorial Park was selected to receive a 2016 field trip grant from the National Park Foundation, the official charity of America's national parks, to support the Every Kid in a Park program. The grant is part of the Foundation's Open OutDoors for Kids program. Students and teachers visit the national park where they will join park educators and Park Rangers on guided tours and various activities. Student activities include viewing the park film and a guided tour through the Visitor Center exhibit and the park's memorials.

"These grants are planting the seeds for lifelong relationships with national parks and their programs," said Will Shafroth, president of the National Park Foundation. "By providing access to transformative experiences like listening to the sound of birds chirping, walking the halls of a school that tell a civil rights story, looking up at a dark night sky, or pitching a tent with a friend for the first time, these children are forever impacted. We appreciate the power of national parks and, through our support, the National Park Foundation hopes to share them with as many kids as possible."

Every Kid in a Park is part of President Obama's commitment to protect our nation's unique outdoor spaces and ensure that every American has the opportunity to visit and enjoy them. The program, now entering its second year, is a call to action for children to experience America's spectacular outdoors, rich history, and culture.

Every Kid in a Park is a crucial component of a multi-pronged approach to inspire the next generation to discover all that our nation's public lands and waters have to offer, including opportunities to be active, spend time with friends and family, and serve as living classrooms to build critical skills.

The Every Kid in a Park program is an Administration-wide effort between the Department of the Interior, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of the Army, and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The program continues each year with the then-current group of fourth graders. After 12 years, every school-age child in America will have had an opportunity to visit their public land and waters for free, inspiring the next generation to be stewards of our nation's shared natural and cultural heritage.

Samsung recalls Galaxy Note 7 following battery explosions

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Samsung recalled its Galaxy Note 7 smartphones on Friday after finding some of their batteries exploded or caught fire.

Samsung's Note 7s are being pulled from shelves in 10 countries, including South Korea and the United States, just two weeks after the product's launch. Customers who already bought Note 7s will be able to swap them for new smartphones in about two weeks, said Koh Dong-jin, president of Samsung's mobile business.

He apologized for causing inconvenience and concern to customers.

The recall, the first for the new smartphone though not the first for a battery, comes at a crucial moment in Samsung's mobile business. Apple is expected to announce its new iPhone next week and Samsung's mobile division was counting on momentum from the Note 7's strong reviews and higher-than-expected demand.

Samsung said it had confirmed 35 instances of Note 7s catching fire or exploding. There have been no reports of injuries related to the problem.

The company said it has not found a way to tell exactly which phones may endanger users out of the 2.5 million Note 7s already sold globally. It estimated that about 1 in 42,000 units may have a faulty battery.

Samsung didn't say whether customers should stop using their phones, or whether explosions and fires could happen when the phone wasn't charging. Consumers who complained publicly said the problem came while the phone was being charged.

"The ball is in Samsung's court to make this right. Consumers want information about what's going on and peace of mind that this is not going to happen again," said Ramon Llamas, who tracks mobile devices at research firm IDC. "No one wants to wake up at 1, 2 or 3 (in the morning) and find out your smartphone's on fire."

He added that while phone combustions are unusual, "35 instances are 35 too many."

This summer, Samsung ran into a quality-control issue with another smartphone, a niche model called the Galaxy S7 Active. Consumer Reports found that the phone didn't live up to its water-resistance promises. Samsung said that relatively few phones were affected and that it had identified and fixed the manufacturing problem. Samsung said it would replace devices under warranty if it failed, but it declined to let customers swap phones otherwise or to issue a broader recall.

On the Note 7, after complaints surfaced online, Samsung found that a battery cell made by one of its two battery suppliers caused the phone to catch fire. Koh refused to name the supplier.

Le Pen promises French referendum on EU if elected president

PARIS (AP)—The leader of France's far-right National Front set the tone for her campaign for the French presidency Saturday, calling to fight an Islamist "offensive" and promising to hold a nationwide referendum on European Union membership if she is elected next spring.

At a rally in a small eastern village, Marine Le Pen focused on her favorite issues, such as national sovereignty, immigration control, Islamism and what she calls "savage globalization."

The far-right candidate for the April-May election pledged to back the "France of the forgotten, the abandoned and the voiceless."

Le Pen, who announced her presidential bid months ago, delivered her annual speech in Brachay, a hamlet of a few dozen inhabitants and the French municipality where she symbolically won the largest share of votes in the last election.

Along with the economy, the relationship between France's Muslims and non-Muslims has been a recurring theme as presidential hopefuls have kicked off their campaigns. Le Pen claimed she was right before all other presidential hopefuls because her traditional issues are now at the center of the political debate and have found a "considerable resonance" among French voters.

Some politicians on the left say she is using the issue to encourage racism in France, yet polls suggest that she is increasingly likely to make it to the runoff in the presidential election.

Following the British precedent, Le Pen promised to hold a nationwide referendum on whether France should leave or remain in the European Union if she is elected president.

"I will do it in France," she said and hailed the British who had "the courage to choose their destiny" by voting to leave the EU.

Britain's May seeks out new trading relations post

HANGZHOU, China (AP)—British Prime Minister Theresa May said Sunday that she intends to seize new trading opportunities for a Britain that has voted to leave the European Union, reiterating that "Brexit does indeed mean Brexit" and there will be "no attempt to get out of this."

After May's first meeting with President Barack Obama since she took office in July, the two leaders sought to downplay the impact of the British exit on the much touted "special relationship" between the U.S. and U.K.

But Obama did not back away from his assertion, first made as he campaigned against the exit, that Britain would have to wait its turn before the United States would negotiate a new, separate trade deal with a Britain outside the EU. Obama noted the U.S. remains focused on finishing trade deals with Asian Pacific countries and with the EU.

The president said that he believed that Britain's priority meanwhile was "figuring out what Brexit means with respect to Europe." Still, Obama promised to work closely with May to avoid "adverse effects" in the trade relationship.

Britain narrowly voted to leave the EU in June, but the government has yet to formally invoke Article 50, the EU treaty clause that would set up its departure. Invoking the clause would start a two-year countdown that would be unlikely to benefit Britain as it has not yet worked out what it wants its future relationship with the European Union to look like.

There is also opposition to a British exit among a significant part of the population and questions over whether Parliament will be given a formal vote on triggering Article 50.

"There will be no second referendum, no attempt to turn the clock back, no attempt to try to get out of this," May told reporters on the sidelines of the Group of 20 industrialized nations in the Chinese city of Hangzhou. Britain "will be leaving the European Union," she said.

FINAL PUBLIC NOTICE

POWER PLANTS 1 AND 4 SAIPAN COMMONWEALTH UTILITIES CORPORATION PW 85, DR-4235-MP

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) intends to provide federal financial assistance under the Public Assistance program to the Saipan Commonwealth Utilities Corporation (CUC), through the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands (CNMI) Emergency Management Agency to restore and protect facilities at the Power Plants 1 and 4 on Saipan (proposed action). Pursuant to Executive Order 11988 (Floodplain Management) and FEMA's implementing regulations at Title 44 of the Code of Federal Regulations Part 9, FEMA hereby provides interested parties with a notice of its final decision and an explanation of the alternatives that were considered.

The proposed action would occur at two locations, one in the Village of Lower Base (Power Plant 1) and one in Puerto Rico (Power Plant 4), Saipan, CNMI. The project area is depicted on the CNMI Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM), Map Number 6900000032C, effective date April 3, 2006. The FIRM shows that the project area is in Zone AE, an area with a 1-percent probability of flooding every year and an established base flood elevation of 6 feet.

The purpose of the proposed action is to restore and protect the power plant facilities, Power plant 1 at Lower Base and Power plant 4 at Puerto Rico. With new systems station service power can be restored immediately to initiate the full power plant operation. These facilities were damaged by winds and rain associated with Typhoon Soudelor, which caused damage throughout CNMI between August 1 and 3, 2015. The proposed action would replace the damaged generators at both power plant facilities. In addition, CUC proposes to repair the typhoon damage to the structure, roof and wall panels of the power plant facilities, Power plant 1 & 2 and 4. A map of the project area and its location within the floodplain is available for public inspection. Any party interested in receiving a copy of the map should contact the FEMA Region IX Environmental Officer at the address or phone number below.

FEMA has determined that the proposed action is the only feasible alternative available to CUC. The proposed action would not adversely affect the floodplain and would benefit the public by restoring power supply to the community including critical facilities such as the main hospital. CUC believes the slab for the generator once completed will be at an elevation of 10 feet above sea level, at power plant 1. At power plant 4, this is not a concern as it is at least 30 feet above sea level. Further mitigation is not necessary. The proposed action conforms to local floodplain standards. CUC is responsible for implementing and monitoring the proposed action.

Additional information about FEMA's proposed action may be obtained by writing the FEMA Region IX Environmental Officer at FEMA, 1111 Broadway, Suite 1200, Oakland, California 94607 or fema-rix-ehp-documents@fema.dhs.gov, or calling (510) 627-7027. All requests should be received no later than September 12, 2016. No action will be taken before this date.

Hermine kills two, ruins beach weekends in northward march

By JESSICA GRESKO
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The once-and-future Hurricane Hermine regained strength Saturday as it moved slowly up the Eastern Seaboard and made a mess of the holiday weekend.

Hermine (her-MEEN) already caused two deaths, damaged properties and left hundreds of thousands without electricity from Florida to Virginia. It spawned a tornado in North Carolina and closed beaches as far north as New York.

"This is not a beach weekend for anyone in the Mid-Atlantic to the northeast," said Eric Blake, a hurricane specialist at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

Hermine rose up over the Gulf of Mexico and hit Florida on Friday as a Category 1 hurricane before weakening to a tropical storm across Georgia.

By 11 p.m. Saturday, Hermine's top sustained winds remained at 70 mph (110 kph) as it moved east-northeast at 13 mph (20 kph). The storm, expected to turn northward on Sunday, was centered about 205 miles southeast of Ocean City, Maryland.

Forecasters expected Hermine to regain hurricane force on Sunday as it travels up the coast before weakening again to a tropical storm by Tuesday.

Governors all along the coast announced emergency preparations. Tropical storm warnings were in effect as far north as Connecticut.

And since sea levels have risen up to a foot due to global warming, the storm surges pushed by Hermine could be even more damaging, climate scientists say.

Michael Mann at Pennsylvania State University noted that this century's one-foot sea-level rise in New York City meant 25 more square miles flooded during Superstorm Sandy, causing billions more in damage.

"We are already experiencing more and more flooding due to climate change in every storm," said Michael Oppenheimer, a geosciences professor at Princeton University. "And it's only the beginning."

The winds and rain were so strong Saturday in North Carolina that all bridges to the Outer Banks were closed for several hours following a deadly accident over the intra-coastal waterway.

Record-tying Oklahoma earthquake felt as far away as Arizona

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A record-tying earthquake in the edge of Oklahoma's key energy-producing areas rattled the Midwest from Illinois to the southwest part of Texas on Saturday, bringing fresh attention to the practice of disposing oil and gas field wastewater deep underground.

The United States Geological Survey said a 5.6 magnitude earthquake happened at 7:02 a.m. Saturday in north-central Oklahoma, on the fringe of an area where regulators had stepped in to limit wastewater disposal. That temblor matches a November 2011 quake in the same region.

An increase in magnitude

3.0 or greater earthquakes in Oklahoma has been linked to underground disposal of wastewater from oil and natural gas production.

The Oklahoma Corporation Commission, which since 2013 has asked wastewater-well owners to reduce disposal volumes in parts of the state, is requiring 37 wells in a 514 square-mile area around the epicenter of the earthquake to shut down within seven to 10 days because of previous connections between the injection of wastewater and earthquakes.

"All of our actions have been based on the link that researchers have drawn between the Arbuckle disposal well operations and earthquakes in Oklahoma," spokesman Matt Skinner said Saturday. "We're trying to do this as quickly as possible, but we have to follow the recommendations of the seismologists, who tell us everything going off at once can cause an (earthquake)."

Skinner said the commission's "area of interest" includes another 211 square miles in Osage County. However, he said the commission doesn't know how many wells may be involved because the area is under the jurisdiction of the Environmental Protection Agency, and the commission is working with that agency.

Son shot, home flooded: 2 tragedies rock 1 Louisiana family

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—For nearly 50 days, James Tullier has barely left the Baton Rouge hospital where he's held vigil for his son, a sheriff's deputy wounded in an ambush that killed three other officers—not even when his family was hit by a second tragedy, their homes wrecked in historic flooding.

Tullier doesn't have time to mourn the damage to his house, or the neighboring homes of his other two sons. Doctors initially feared that Nick Tullier had less than 24 hours to live after the shooting.

"The house could have washed away. It's just not a priority to us. Nick is our priority," James Tullier said during an interview at Our Lady of the Lake Regional Medical Center, where James, his wife, Mary, and Nick's fiancée take shifts at his bedside.

Now, the family sees a miracle. James Tullier said his 41-year-old son is in a coma but began responding to relatives' words less than a week ago—by blinking an eye, moving toes and squeezing his mother's hand.

"Medically, he's not supposed to be here," Tullier said of Nick, who has two teenage sons, Trent and Gage.

Early estimates indicate more than 150,000 homes in south Louisiana were destroyed or damaged in the flooding. While tens of thousands of residents have returned to salvage waterlogged belongings and muck out their homes, James Tullier hasn't even set foot inside his.

He recently stopped by the property in Denham Springs—a Baton Rouge suburb where floodwaters damaged roughly 90 percent of homes and businesses—to fix his mailbox. It's all he's seen of the damage from water that topped the light switches on the home's first floor.

His 83-year-old mother is living with 10 dogs—nine of them hers, one she took in after the flooding—on the second floor of the damaged house because her trailer home flooded. James Tullier's other two sons also were displaced by the damage to their homes. Tullier, 62, is staying in a motor home parked outside the hospital, while his wife and Nick's fiancée sleep at the hospital.

PH president declares 'state of lawlessness' after bomb kills 14

DAVAO, Philippines (AP)—Philippine President Rodrigo Duterte declared a nationwide "state of lawlessness" Saturday after suspected Abu Sayyaf extremists detonated a bomb that killed 14 people and wounded about 70 in his southern hometown.

Duterte, who inspected the scene of Friday night's attack at a night market in downtown Davao city, said his declaration did not amount to an imposition of martial law. It allows troops to be deployed in urban centers to back up the police in setting up checkpoints and increasing patrols, he said.

An Abu Sayyaf spokesman, Abu Rami, claimed responsibility for the blast near the Jesuit-run Ateneo de Davao University and a five-star hotel, but Duterte said investigators were looking at other possible suspects, including drug syndicates, which he has targeted in a bloody crackdown.

"These are extraordinary times and I supposed that I'm authorized to allow the security forces of this country to do searches," Duterte told reporters at the scene

US, Russia close on Syria deal, but Obama says not there yet

HANGZHOU, China (AP)—The United States is skeptical an agreement with Russia to deescalate violence in Syria can work but will keep pursuing it nonetheless, President Barack Obama said Sunday as negotiators from both countries edged toward a deal.

Obama, speaking on the sidelines of the Group of 20 economic summit in China, said the U.S. and Russia still have "grave differences" about what's needed to end Syria's civil war and which opposition groups are legitimate targets for the U.S. and Russian militaries. But he said "it is worth trying" to secure an agreement nonetheless, adding that negotiators were working "around the clock."

"We're not there yet," Obama said. "I think it's premature for us to say there's a clear path forward, but there's the possibility at least for us to make some progress."

of the attack, asking the public to cooperate and be vigilant.

"We're trying to cope up with a crisis now. There is a crisis in this country involving drugs, extrajudicial killings and there seems to be an environment of lawless violence," said Duterte, who served as mayor of Davao for years before being elected president in June.

The attack came as Philippine forces were on alert amid an ongoing military offensive against Abu Sayyaf extremists in southern Sulu province that intensified last week after the militants beheaded a kidnapped villager. The militants threatened to launch an unspecified attack after the military said 30 of the gunmen were killed in the weeklong offensive.

A deal could be announced as early as Sunday by U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry and Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov, said a senior U.S. State Department official, adding that the two countries were close to a deal but still had to resolve some issues. The official wasn't authorized to discuss the negotiations publicly and requested anonymity.

WORLD BRIEFS

Mother Teresa honored as saint and model of mercy

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Thousands of pilgrims are thronging to St. Peter's Square for the canonization of Mother Teresa, the tiny nun who cared for the world's most unwanted and became the icon of a Catholic Church that goes to the peripheries to find lost, wounded souls. Pope Francis is declaring Mother Teresa a saint at a Sunday morning Mass, making her the model of his Jubilee Year of Mercy and in some ways his entire papacy. For Francis, Mother Teresa put into action his ideal for the church to be a merciful "field hospital" for the poorest of the poor—both materially and spiritually. Throughout the night, pilgrims prayed at vigils in area churches and flocked before dawn to the Vatican under heavy security to try to get a good spot for the Mass that was expected to draw more than 100,000 people.

Shootouts in Mexico border city kill 11, including bystander

CIUDAD VICTORIA, Mexico (AP)—Two highway shootouts between soldiers and suspected drug gang members in a northern border city resulted in 11 dead Saturday, including a bystander caught in the crossfire, Mexican authorities reported. The violence in Nuevo Laredo, across from Laredo, Texas, prompted the temporary closure of the highway, which is a major artery for travel and commerce between the United States and Mexico. The Tamaulipas state government said in a statement that the armed confrontations began early Saturday when troops killed eight suspected criminals on the highway. Soldiers seized a truck and high-caliber weapons, it said.

Nigeria's urgent polio vaccination drive targets 25 million

MAIDUGURI, Nigeria (AP)—An emergency polio vaccination campaign aimed at reaching 25 million children this year has begun in parts of Nigeria newly freed from Boko Haram Islamic extremists, with fears that many more cases of the crippling disease will likely be found. Two toddlers discovered last month were Nigeria's first reported polio cases in more than two years, putting the world on alert just months after the African continent was declared free of the disease. One member of the Rotary Club's "End Polio Now" drive said he almost cried when he got the news. It was a major blow to global efforts to stamp out polio, which persists in only two other countries, Pakistan and Afghanistan.

Teens showing signs of 'text neck'

By VIKKI ORTIZ HEALY
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Think your kid's posture is starting to suffer from always looking down at a cellphone?

It is, according to a national chain of physical therapy clinics, which reports that more teens than ever are complaining of "text neck," or back and neck pain that can only be explained by the strain on the body caused by constant viewing of hand-held technology.

"We have teens experiencing the same shoulder, neck and back pain usually felt by people 30 years older," said Megan Randich, a physical therapist and facility manager for Athletico in Westchester, Ill. "They shouldn't be experiencing those issues."

Randich said spine specialists also are seeing evidence of strain from cellphone, tablet and laptop use in high school athletes who complain that they don't have the normal range of motion — or feel pain when trying to throw a baseball, strike a football stance or perform in other sporting activities.

The physical therapists' findings echo research published in 2014 in the National Library of Medicine, which warned that the extra weight — sometimes up to 60 pounds — on the cervical spine caused by looking down can lead to wear-and-tear on the spine, degeneration and even surgery.

Elaina Towns, a mother of three in Palatine, Ill., said she and her husband routinely try to enforce rules to limit their kids' screen time, and thus, strain on their bodies. The family doesn't allow technology use during dinner or at family gatherings. By 10:30 p.m. all electronics must be docked in a charging station and remain off all night, she said.

Still, Towns said she thinks all young people growing up in this era are at risk for text neck.

"I have kids who are very active and not plugged in all the time, but nonetheless, I completely believe that this could have an effect on this generation moving forward," she said. "They don't talk on the phone, for starters, so all their communication through peers is through texting. They're not even picking up their heads."

Athletico, the Oak-Brook, Ill.,-based company with 350 clinics across the U.S., is so concerned about the prevalence of text neck that it has produced a list of stretches and exercises teens may do to correct the damage and improve damaged tissue.

The exercises include:

■ Shoulder Blade Squeeze: Pinch your shoulder blades back behind you, working to touch your elbows. Once back as far as you can go, hold the position for 5 seconds before relaxing. Repeat 20 to 30 times.

■ Neck Stretch: Sit up tall with your head held high. Pull chin toward your chest, creating a double chin, and hold this position for 5 seconds. Repeat this 20 to 30 times.

■ Chest Stretch: Stand in the middle of a doorway and hold both ends of the door frame. Lean forward until you feel a stretch. Hold this position for 5 seconds and repeat 20 to 30 times.

Randich added that another way for teens to combat text neck: Get outside and be active.

"Before this generation, there was so much more outdoor free play," she said. "Activities used to counter any poor posture or positioning. They're no longer doing that."

TNS
Physical therapists say they're seeing more and more people come in with the "text neck"—sore and damaged necks from looking down at our phones so much.

Fitbit makes exercise even more of a game

NEW YORK (AP)—Fitbit wants to help you exercise more by making you think you're hiking famous trails instead of strolling around your neighborhood.

The new motivational feature, called Adventures, will be available to all Fitbit users through a free app update

Monday.

The feature tracks the distance you've walked or run and maps it against actual trails, starting with three at Yosemite National Park in California. The Fitbit app will unlock badge-like images of trail landmarks—say, a scenic waterfall at mile 5—as you progress. Other rewards include "fun facts" and health tips along the way. Fitbit will add other destinations, including the ability to "run" the course of the New York City Marathon.

One of Fitbit's most popular features has been its ability to let friends and family compare steps they've taken throughout the day. Fitbit says those who participate in such challenges tend to take 30 percent more steps. The company says Adventures is designed to offer similar challenges even if people haven't assembled real-life groups.

The feature might help some users stick with step tracking and other fitness measures after the novelty wears off. People who keep using their Fitbits are more likely to tell their friends about them, and to upgrade to more advanced models themselves, analysts say.

Fitbit, the market leader in wearable devices, is also updating two older devices, the 2013 Flex and the 2014 Charge, mostly to bring them in line with what newer devices and rivals offer. Besides tracking steps and sleep, the Flex 2 and the Charge 2 will remind people to take moving breaks throughout the day. That's coming to the Fitbit Blaze, too, through a software update.

The Charge 2 will have a heart-rate monitor, a feature previously limited to the HR edition of the Charge. It will guide users to take deep-breathing breaks, something the Apple Watch will also soon do. One new feature promises a quick snapshot of cardiovascular fitness based on a metric known as VO2 max. While this typically requires running on a treadmill with an oxygen mask, Fitbit estimates it using running speed and heart rate instead. There's been no independent testing yet on the method's accuracy, though the company is confident.

Meanwhile, the Flex 2 will be the first Fitbit with sufficient water resistance for use during swimming; Fitbit rivals like Garmin already offer that on some devices.

The Charge 2 is expected to ship in September for $150, while the Flex 2 will come in October for $100.

WHAT IF:

Could a debate smackdown shake up the election?

WASHINGTON (AP) —Get ready for some must-see TV. The fall debates are always a big part of any presidential campaign. But with many 2016 voters underwhelmed by both Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump, this year's debates could well be more influential than usual.

"Because the electorate is so volatile this year, it doesn't take nearly as much to get a loosely aligned voter to switch their allegiance," says Dan Schnur, director of the University of Southern California's political institute.

With Trump in the mix, there's also plenty of potential for shock value.

"Mass audiences are going to be tuning in to look for a smackdown," says Eric

Dezenhall, a Washington crisis management consultant.

In the primaries, Trump grabbed the spotlight in the opening minutes of the first of a dozen GOP debates, when he was the only candidate to refuse to rule out a third-party run for president. He rarely relinquished it, dropping jaws at one point when he matter-of-factly referred to the size of his genitalia.

The nine Democratic debates showcased Clinton as an experienced debater, although the highlight may have been Bernie Sanders' curt dismissal of all the attention being paid to Clinton's "damn emails."

Over the past half-century, general-election debates have offered plenty of moments of televised high drama —but knockouts are rare.

In 1980, a cheerful Ronald Reagan shone in his debate against President Jimmy Carter, scolding him with a gentle "there you go again," and posing a pointed closing question: "Are you better off than you were four years ago?" Pollsters reported a resulting sharp shift in public opinion, according to Alan Schroeder's book, "Presidential Debates: Forty Years of High-Risk TV."

Two decades earlier, in the first televised debates, a sickly, fatigued and unprepared

Richard Nixon never recovered from his disastrous performance in the first of three 1960 face-offs with then-Sen. John F. Kennedy.

This year, given Trump's unpredictability, says Schroeder: "You've got a recipe for a highly combustible situation."

"For viewers, it creates a scenario that virtually compels them to watch," he says. "Anything that happens on that stage will therefore be magnified exponentially."

There are questions about how this fall's debates will unfold: Trump has been complaining that two of them conflict with NFL games, and expressed concern that moderators might not be fair. He's said he wants to participate, but hasn't entirely committed.

The presidential debates are scheduled for Sept. 26, Oct. 9 and Oct. 19. A vice presidential debate is set for Oct. 4.

Michael Phelps has 'never seen' Ryan Lochte's dance moves

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Michael Phelps isn't sure what kind of moves Ryan Lochte has planned for "Dancing with the Stars."

"I've never seen him dance," the 23-time Olympic gold medalist said Friday at the "Call of Duty" fan convention in Inglewood, California.

Lochte is competing against such celebs as rapper Vanilla Ice and "The Brady Bunch" actress Maureen McCormick in the ABC dancing competition's latest season.

Phelps said he isn't planning a trip to the ballroom to root for his teammate, who is facing charges from Brazilian police that he filed a false robbery report during the recent Olympics in Rio de Janeiro.

"I have a very busy schedule," Phelps said. "I'm getting married at the end of the year and have some work here and there. I don't know if I'll be able to make it."

Phelps, a longtime fan of the interactive shooter series "Call of Duty," was on hand at the event to check out the latest edition, "Call of Duty: Infinite Warfare." He's hopeful now that he's retired from competing that he'll be able to log more hours in the game, although finance Nicole Johnson and newborn baby Boomer may deter him from death matches.

"We have a little guy," Phelps said. "We have a lot of traveling and everything going on. I look forward to traveling with an Xbox more often now and getting in as many games as I can."

Phelps said he typically played hundreds of "Call of Duty" matches when preparing for swimming competitions.

Fall Movie Preview: Highlights from September to December

LOS ANGELES (AP)—There's something for everyone in movie theaters this fall. The calendar is jam-packed with romance, spectacle and jaw-dropping true life stories.

Some of our most familiar franchises take bold leaps into undiscovered areas of their universes: Marvel side-steps into the metaphysical with the Benedict Cumberbatch-led "Doctor Strange" (Nov. 4), J.K. Rowling's Harry Potter world gets new life in "Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them" (Nov. 18), and we find out just how those rebels stole the Death Star plans in "Rogue One: A Star Wars Story" (Dec. 16).

A monthly rundown of fall highlights:

SEPTEMBER

"Sully" (Sept. 9)—Director Clint Eastwood takes audiences behind the scenes of the investigation around the Miracle on the Hudson, with Tom Hanks as Capt. Chesley Sullenberger.

"The Magnificent Seven" (Sept. 23)—Denzel Washington and Chris Pratt head to the old West in Antoine Fuqua's remake of the John Sturges film, itself a remake of "Seven Samurai."

"Deepwater Horizon" (Sept. 30)—Discover the true story of what happened to the men and women on the oil rig that caused the catastrophic Gulf of Mexico oil spill. Mark Wahlberg, Kurt Russell and Gina Rodriguez star.

"American Honey" (Sept. 30)—Go on an atmospheric road trip through the Midwest with some drifting teens, including a revelatory Shia LaBeouf.

OCTOBER

"The Birth of a Nation" (Oct. 7)—Controversy surrounding writer, director and star Nate Parker aside, his film tells the fascinating story of Nat Turner's 1831 slave rebellion.

"The Girl on the Train" (Oct. 7)—Emily Blunt stars in this adaptation of Paula Hawkins' best-selling thriller about a divorced woman who becomes entangled in the mysterious disappearance of a woman she'd watched from afar.

"The Accountant" (Oct. 14)—Who said accounting was boring? A math whiz with some dangerous clients gets in over his head in the new Gavin O'Connor thriller. Ben Affleck, Anna Kendrick and J.K. Simmons star.

"Moonlight" (Oct. 21)—Director Barry Jenkins tells a lyrical coming of age story set in the underbelly of Miami's drug scene with the help of Naomie Harris and Janelle Monae.

"Inferno" (Oct. 28)—Tom Hanks reprises his role as symbologist Robert Langdon in the Dan Brown series.

NOVEMBER

"Billy Lynn's Long Halftime Walk" (Nov. 11)—A young Iraq veteran returns home for a victory tour in Ang Lee's adaptation of Ben Fountain's acclaimed novel.

"Arrival" (Nov. 11)—Amy Adams and Jeremy Renner star in director Denis Villeneuve's mind-bendingly intelligent alien encounter drama.

"Manchester by the Sea" (Nov. 18)—Kenneth Lonergan spins a poetic tale of family and tragedy in a film that's been pegged as an Oscar contender since January. Casey Affleck, Michelle Williams and Kyle Chandler star.

"Moana" (Nov. 23)—Disney Animation takes us back thousands of years to the South Pacific for a story about young woman who sets sail for a fabled island. Dwayne Johnson voices a demigod, of course.

"Rules Don't Apply" (Nov. 23)—After a 15-year hiatus from films, Warren Beatty returns to the form with an ode to 1950s Hollywood and riff on prudish mores with Lily Collins and Alden Ehrenreich. Beatty plays Howard Hughes.

DECEMBER

"La La Land" (Dec. 2)—A moody musician (Ryan Gosling) and an aspiring actress (Emma Stone) fall in love while pursuing their dreams in this musical dreamscape from "Whiplash" writer-director Damien Chazelle.

"Fences" (Dec. 16)—Denzel Washington directs himself and Viola Davis reprising their Tony-winning roles in this August Wilson adaptation.

"Passengers" (Dec. 21)—Jennifer Lawrence and Chris Pratt are jolted out of hypersleep 60 years early in a spacecraft traveling to a distant planet.

"A Monster Calls" (Dec. 23)—Get transported away from life's hardships to a land of monsters and magic in director J.A. Bayona's fantastical adaptation of Patrick Ness's children's novel, with Liam Neeson as the tree monster.

Lawyer for Chris Brown: no guns, drugs found in house search

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police did not find guns or drugs during a search of singer Chris Brown's mansion before his arrest on allegations he threatened a model at gunpoint, his lawyer said Friday.

Attorney Mark Geragos said he was present during the search and police did not find evidence to corroborate the accuser's story, including a specific piece of jewelry that she said triggered the incident.

Baylee Curran told reporters that Brown pointed a gun at her face after he and another man became angry with her when she admired the man's diamond necklace.

Brown was arrested Tuesday on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon. He was released on $250,000 bail.

Geragos said the accuser's story was fabricated.

"This woman got irate when she was asked to leave because she was acting in an erratic manner," Geragos said.

Capt. Andy Neiman said the Los Angeles Police Department is working with prosecutors to review the evidence and not commenting on the case.

The Grammy-winning Brown has had legal trouble since his felony conviction in the 2009 assault of then-girlfriend, Rihanna. He completed probation in that case last year.

SHOWBIZ TIDBITS

Vandal damages Justin Bieber sand sculpture at NY state fair

GEDDES, N.Y. (AP)—Police are looking for the vandal who defaced a sand sculpture of Justin Bieber at the New York State Fair. State police tell the Post-Standard of Syracuse that the sculpture apparently was vandalized Thursday night. Bieber's likeness was part of a 200-ton sand sculpture depicting artists who performed at the fair's old grandstand, which was imploded in January. Bieber's face appeared near the base of the sculpture. He was below the Charlie Daniels Band and singer Charley Pride and to the left of actor Steve Martin. The fair runs through Monday in Geddes, near Syracuse.

Louisiana boy finds bag of meth in video game package

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—It was Grand Theft Auto come to life: When an 11-year-old bought a video game Wednesday in Lake Charles, Louisiana, he opened the plastic case to find a bag of drugs. KPLC-TV reports that the boy's father returned to the store and called police. Det. Rebecca Reed with the Calcasieu Parish Sheriff's Office confirmed the substance was methamphetamine. Joey Mooring is director of public relations for GameStop. Mooring told the TV station that the Grapevine, Texas-based company checks used games for quality when customers trade them in. He also says games are checked again before being shipped to another store. The Lake Charles store manager says employees there typically don't examine games received from elsewhere in the company. Reed says GameStop told police it couldn't track the game's origin.

Eastwood movie 'Sully' to open Telluride Film Festival

TELLURIDE, Colo. (AP)—Clint Eastwood's movie about the "Miracle on the Hudson" pilot will get its world premiere during the Telluride Film Festival. "Sully," starring Tom Hanks as pilot Chesley "Sully" Sullenberger, will open the 43rd annual festival on Friday night. Other films that that will be shown include "Bleed for This," starring Miles Teller as the former boxer Vinny Paz, and a modern musical romance called "La La Land" starring Ryan Gosling and Emma Stone. The festival will continue through Monday.

Tweet NY Public Library an emoji, get a related image back

NEW YORK (AP)—While brainstorming ways to highlight its digital image archive, The New York Public Library came up with—the emoji bot. If you tweet an emoji to NYPL Emoji Bot (@NYPLEmoji), you will get an automatic reply with a related image from its vast digital collection. So if you tweet clinking beer glasses, you might get a response showing two people clinking wine glasses. An emoji of a birthday cake icon might generate an image of two people blowing out candles on a huge cake. The emoji project came about as the library sought to highlight its more than 694,000-item digital image archive. Digital Experience Producer Lauren Lampasone says it began with a spreadsheet of existing emoji characters and matching images added over several months.

Amy Schumer had heckler ejected at Swedish show

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—U.S. actress and stand-up comedian Amy Schumer asked venue to security to remove a heckler who shouted out a sexist comment during a live show in Sweden this week.

The video, posted on Schumer's YouTube tour channel, shows the 35-year-old actress challenging the man and asking people in the audience to point him out.

After the man shouted a second comment, Schumer responded: "Did you just yell out again? Oh! Yeah, I'm sorry, now it's time."

Audience members clapped and cheered as the man was escorted out during the show on Wednesday.

Schumer has three more stops on the European leg of her tour, in Denmark and Britain, before heading back to the United States.

2 Fray members get writing credit on Chainsmokers' No. 1 hit

NEW YORK (AP)—Two members of the rock band The Fray are now credited as co-writers on The Chainsmokers' No. 1 smash, "Closer."

When it was released this summer, "Closer" drew comparisons to The Fray's 2005 hit, "Over My Head (Cable Car)." Now, the listing for "Closer" on the website for performance rights organization ASCAP includes Fray lead singer Isaac Slade and guitarist Joe King.

A representative for The Fray confirmed that Slade and King are co-writers of "Closer." Reps for ASCAP and The Chainsmokers wouldn't comment.

The Chainsmokers include Andrew Taggart and Alex Pall. The EDM duo's other hits are

"Don't Let Me Down," "Roses" and "Selfie."

"Closer" was also co-written by Taggart, Shaun Frank,

Frederic Kennett and Halsey, who sings on the track. "Over My Head" peaked at No. 8 on the Billboard Hot 100.

Anglo woman using Spanish fears she may be out of line

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired librarian who lives in Texas. I am what around here is called "Anglo," meaning white and not Hispanic. I speak four languages, with varying degrees of proficiency.

Recently, a friend who is Hispanic told me that if an Anglo speaks Spanish to a Hispanic person, it's considered an insult because it implies that the Hispanic person is "too stupid" to learn English. I had never heard of this before, so I asked a retired college-level Spanish teacher who is also Anglo. She informed me that Hispanic people use the language difference as a "boundary," and my speaking Spanish to them was a violation of their boundaries.

It came as a complete shock! This happened more than a month ago, and I'm having a hard time dealing with it. I spent a lifetime developing language skills. I always considered speaking another language to be a sign of respect and friendship. Now I'm being told that it's insulting and intrusive?

I can't believe all Hispanic people feel this way, but I don't know what to do with this information. My next-door neighbors are Spanish-speaking. I've always spoken to them in Spanish because it's what I heard from them when I first met them. Now I don't know if I've been insulting them. What should I do?

IN SHOCK IN SAN ANTONIO

DEAR IN SHOCK: After reading your letter, I polled a focus group of Spanish-speaking friends about it. Some said it didn't bother them, but the majority explained that the reaction may depend upon how long the family has been in this country. If it has been several generations, the people you are addressing might identify more as English speakers than Spanish speakers, and consider your addressing them in Spanish to be condescending because it implies that you don't think they have learned English.

So the rule of thumb would be: Assume that everyone speaks English; then if it turns out they don't, use their language.

P.S. If your relationship with your neighbors is a good one, tell them what you were told and ask if you may have offended them because if you have, you would like to apologize.

DEAR ABBY: My wife, "Jennifer," and I just finished a project and I am so peeved. We usually get along well. That is, until we work together. Then I go from Dr. Jekyll to Mr. Hyde.

I spent 25 years in heavy industrial construction. I have also taken classes in woodworking and metal crafts. My wife has no building skills and no knowledge of how to use power tools. Yet, only minutes after we start, she becomes an engineer and starts telling me how to do things. When it happens, I explode with cursing and throwing things. The thing I yell the most of-

Serena sets record Grand Slam match victory

NEW YORK (AP)—So about that inflamed right shoulder that was supposed to hinder Serena Williams at the U.S. Open as she seeks a record 23rd major title: It sure seems to be just fine.

“Definitely feels solid,” Williams said.

Not sure? There’s plenty of evidence. No need to take her word—or her coach’s—for it.

Look at the way Williams beat 47th-ranked Johanna Larsson 6-1, 6-1 on Saturday to reach the fourth round at Flushing Meadows and collect the 307th Grand Slam match victory of her career, surpassing Martina Navratilova for most by a woman in the Open era and equaling Roger Federer for most by anyone since 1968.

Williams reached 121 mph on a serve. She had a half-dozen aces, bringing her total this week to 31. She faced only one break point - her first of the tournament—and saved it. She smacked seven return winners. She compiled a 24-5 total edge in winners.

“Tennis-wise, I think it was very satisfying in all aspects. It’s not perfect, of course,” said her coach, Patrick Mouratoglou. “But for someone who didn’t play much matches in the last two months, I think she’s competitive.”

AP
Serena Williams of the United States returns a shot to Johanna Larsson of Sweden during the third round of the U.S. Open tennis tournament, Saturday, Sept. 3, 2016, in New York.

Now there’s an understatement.

“There is no pain. Maybe she feels a little. I don’t know;

I’m not in her shoulder. But I see she plays normal. She serves normal. At practice, she serves the quantity that we usually do, full power,” Mouratoglou said. “So I don’t see any problem. And she doesn’t even talk about it. I know it’s under control now.”

That sounds like bad news for upcoming opponents, starting with 52nd-ranked Yaroslava Shvedova, who advanced to the round of 16 in New York for the first time by beating Zhang Shuai 6-2, 7-5.

Monday’s other fourth-round women’s matchups will be Williams’ older sister Venus vs. No. 10 Karolina Pliskova, No. 5 Simona Halep vs. No. 11 Carla Suarez Navarro, and No. 4 Agnieszka Radwanska vs. Ana Konjuh. Venus Williams advanced comfortably Saturday night by beating No. 26 Laura Siegemund 6-1, 6-2. In that half of the draw, only the players with the last name Williams have won a Grand Slam title; the sisters could meet in the semifinals a year after Serena eliminated Venus in the quarters.

Two past men’s champions, Andy Murray and Juan Martin del Potro, moved into the fourth round.

Murray, who won the 2012 U.S. Open, had trouble in each of the first two sets, but eventually became more patient during baseline exchanges and took control for a 7-6 (4), 5-7, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Paolo Lorenzi. Murray joins Kyle Edmund - who won Friday to set up a match against No. 1 Novak Djokovic - to give Britain two men in the round of 16 at the American Grand Slam tournament for the first time since 1966, when it was known as the U.S. Championships.

A third British man, Dan Evans, came within a point of also making the fourth round but failed to complete what would have been a significant upset, fading in a 4-6, 6-3, 6-7 (6), 7-6 (8), 6-2 loss to No. 3 Stan Wawrinka. Evans held a match point at 6-5 in the fourth-set tiebreaker, but Wawrinka erased it, then took that set and raced to a 4-0 lead in the fifth.

Wawrinka next faces 63rd-ranked Illya Marchenko, who advanced when No. 14 Nick Kyrgios quit because of injury while trailing two sets to one.

There’s only one American man left: Jack Sock, who faces No. 9 Jo-Wilfried Tsonga on Sunday. That’s because 19-year-old qualifier Jared Donaldson’s run ended with a straight-set loss to 37-year-old Ivo Karlovic, the oldest man to reach the fourth round in New York since Jimmy Connors was 39 in 1991. Karlovic plays No. 6 Kei Nishikori next.

Del Potro’s resurgence continued with a 7-6 (3), 6-2, 6-3 victory over No. 11 David Ferrer. The 2009 champion in New York missed 2 1/2 years’ worth of major tournaments because of three operations on his left wrist, and he’s ranked only 142nd, which is why he needed a wild-card invitation to get into the field.

Williams is 4-0 against Shvedova, who is best known for the first “golden set” in the Open era, which began in 1968: She won all 24 points of the first set against Sara Errani at Wimbledon in 2012.

“She’s dangerous,” Mouratoglou said. “But I think Serena is even more dangerous.”

Larsson would probably agree.

“You’re out there, you’re trying to find ways to win,” Larsson said, “but sometimes, it’s just not happening.”

Mouratoglou said Williams’ shoulder began bothering her a day or two after Wimbledon, where she teamed with Venus to win doubles and tied Steffi Graf’s Open-era record with Grand Slam singles title No. 22.

This was Williams’ first daytime match of the U.S. Open, so she debuted a new outfit—a white dress accessorized with neon pink compression wraps on her arms, which she called “my ‘Wonder Woman’ sleeves.”

“I feel this design, in particular, really is kind of like a superhero design,” Williams said. “Like a really powerful, strong character that is strong, but yet isn’t afraid to be soft at the same time.”

Bradford trade overshadows NFL cutdowns

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Trades overshadowed cuts Saturday as NFL teams got down to the 53-man limit for the regular season.

Minnesota made the biggest noise with a major strike, replacing injured quarterback Teddy Bridgewater by acquiring Sam Bradford from Philadelphia in a deal as stunning for its timing as for who was involved.

Bradford, the No. 1 overall draft pick in 2010 by the Rams, was ensconced as the Eagles’ starter and signed a lucrative two-year contract. But the Vikings, sensing they still could contend for the NFC title after winning the NFC North last year, parted with a first-round pick next year and a fourth-rounder in 2018 for, basically, one season of Bradford as a starter. When, that is, Bradford has learned Norv Turner’s offense.

“This was not part of the blueprint, but we have to take advantage of opportunities that are presented to us,” Eagles personnel boss Howie Roseman said. “We did not go into this wanting to trade Sam Bradford, but after the offer they made, we felt this was the best move for our football team.”

With the NFL draft being staged in Philadelphia in April, was a nice added touch for the Eagles to get a first-rounder, which they previously lacked.

Another former first-rounder was dealt, but Justin Gilbert hardly has a track record in the NFL. The eighth overall selection in 2014 went from Cleveland to Pittsburgh, which has issues at cornerback. All Gilbert brought back to the Browns in a rare trade among division rivals was a sixth-round draft pick in 2018.

Kansas City traded cornerback Marcus Cooper to Arizona for an undisclosed draft pick, then sent wide receiver Rod Streater and an undisclosed pick to San Francisco for another undisclosed selection. San Francisco sent safety L.J. McCray to Seattle for an undisclosed draft pick in another intradivision deal. The Seahawks also picked up safety Dewey McDonald from Oakland for a conditional 2017 draft choice.

Minnesota made history in April when it selected wide receiver Moritz Bohringer of Germany, who became the first player in NFL history drafted straight from Europe. But he was released Saturday.

Among those released were Broncos quarterback Mark Sanchez, who immediately reached a deal with Dallas; Denver teammates RB Ronnie Hillman and DT Henry Melton; Ravens RB Justin Forsett, a Pro Bowler two years ago; Packers G Josh Sitton, a starter for the last seven seasons and a three-time Pro Bowler; Arizona DT Red Bryant and LB Donald Butler; WR Cecil Shorts III and safety Antonio Allen by Houston; RB Daniel Thomas by Miami; Jets CB Dee Milliner, a 2013 first-rounder; and Redskins DL Cullen Jenkins.

Houston activated three-time NFL Defensive Player of the Year J.J. Watt (back) and OT Duane Brown from the physically unable to perform list.

Cleveland signed punter Britton Colquitt, who was released by Denver.

The Cowboys are adding quarterback Mark Sanchez as the backup to rookie Dak Prescott while Tony Romo recovers from a back injury.

A person with knowledge of the agreement told The Associated Press on Saturday that Sanchez had agreed to a one-year contract that could be worth $2.5 million with incentives. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the contract can’t be signed until Sunday.

Sanchez reached a deal with the Cowboys the same day he was released by Denver as all NFL teams had to get their rosters to the 53-man limit for the regular season. Sanchez’s release cleared him to join any team.

The six-year veteran was acquired by the Broncos in the offseason after Peyton Manning retired and Brock Osweiler bolted to Houston in free agency. But the 29-year-old Sanchez couldn’t beat out second-year pro Trevor Siemian, a seventh-round pick in 2015 from Northwestern.

Dallas has to decide whether to place Romo on the injured reserve-return list after he broke a bone in his back in a preseason game at Seattle. Romo would miss the first seven games if he’s on that list, and Sanchez could take that roster spot.

The Cowboys placed running back Darren McFadden on the non-football injury list, sidelining their leading rusher from last season for at least the first six games. He broke his right elbow during the offseason.

Mets top Nationals to keep wild card hopes alive

NEW YORK
(AP)—A sign above the doorway at one end of the Mets' clubhouse reads: Do Your Thing.

Sage advice for the defending NL champs down the stretch—no matter who is on the mound.

Curtis Granderson and James Loney came through with big hits to back Robert Gsellman, and New York got another gritty start from an unheralded rookie in its banged-up rotation to beat the Washington Nationals 3-1 on Saturday night.

"We've asked a lot of some young players and they have stepped up," Mets manager Terry Collins said. "If you would have told me in April that I'm going to look out on the field and I'm going to have three players that were in our opening day lineup and four rookie pitchers to win a game, I'd tell you you're out of your mind."

Gsellman (2-1) pitched out of trouble for six innings, and inexperienced center fielder Michael Conforto made a diving catch that thwarted a potential Nationals rally in the seventh.

New York rebounded from consecutive losses and won for the 10th time in 14 games, moving within one game of St. Louis for the final NL playoff berth.

"We're right there," Loney said. "This is what we play for."

Giants 3, Cubs 2

In Chicago, Madison Bumgarner outpitched Jake Arrieta with 10 strikeouts over six innings, and the San Francisco Giants pounced on rare mis-cues by the Chicago Cubs.

Bumgarner (14-8) allowed two runs and five hits in his fourth victory in his last five starts. San Francisco, trying to catch Los Angeles in the NL West, rebounded from a pair of one-run losses in the first two games of the four-game set against the major league leaders.

Rangers 12, Astros 4

In Arlington, Adrian Beltre and Nomar Mazara each homered, Derek Holland pitched his third straight quality start since coming off the disabled list and Texas got its seventh straight victory.

After trailing 1-0, the Rangers got their major league-high 42nd come-from-behind win. They've won eight of nine and scored at least 10 runs in each of their past three games.

Orioles 2, Yankees 0

In Baltimore, Kevin Gausman outpitched CC Sabathia for the second time in seven days, Adam Jones homered and Baltimore got its third straight shutout against New York.

Gausman (7-10) allowed two hits and two walks over six innings to win his fourth straight start. He struck out eight and permitted only one runner past second base.

Zach Britton, the third Baltimore reliever, worked a perfect ninth for his 40th save in 40 opportunities.

Rays 7, Blue Jays 5

In St. Petersburg, Matt Duffy's three-run double highlighted a five-run sixth inning and last-place Tampa Bay beat AL East-leading Toronto for the second straight game.

The big outburst came against right-hander Marco Estrada (8-7), who had given up just two singles in the first five innings. Duffy's double was the fifth hit of the inning.

Royals 5, Tigers 2

In Kansas City, Eric Hosmer hit his career-high 20th homer, Yordano Ventura pitched into and out of trouble and Kansas City snapped a three-game losing streak.

Ventura (10-9) improved to 7-0 against the Tigers, including three wins this season, and is 4-0 overall in his past six starts.

Indians 8, Marlins 3

In Cleveland, Trevor Bauer overcame a shaky first inning and pitched into the ninth, Francisco Lindor was 4 for 4 and Cleveland beat Miami.

Bauer (10-6) shut down the Marlins after giving up three runs and three hits in the first. The right-hander didn't allow another hit until Ichiro Suzuki led off the ninth with a single.

Reds 9, Cardinals 1

In Cincinnati, Zack Cozart hit a pair of doubles during run-scoring innings that included St. Louis misplays, and Cincinnati sent the Cardinals to their third straight loss.

The Cardinals have lost seven of 11. They're still in position to get the NL's second wild-card spot, staying ahead of the Mets, Pirates and Marlins.

Twins 11, White Sox 3

In Minneapolis, Miguel Sano and Trevor Plouffe each homered during an eight-run third inning, and Minnesota went deep four times.

Brian Dozier led off with his 34th homer, and Byron Buxton tacked on a two-run shot in the second against beleaguered starter James Shields (5-17).

Dodgers 5, Padres 1

In Los Angeles, Rich Hill pitched six sparkling innings, Yasmani Grandal hit a three-run homer and Los Angeles beat San Diego.

Hill (11-3) allowed one hit, struck out eight and walked two in his second start since the Dodgers acquired him from Oakland at the Aug. 1 trade deadline. The left-hander was scratched at Colorado last week due to a combination of weather and a finger blister.

Brewers 7, Pirates 4

In Pittsburgh, struggling rookie Orlando Arcia had three hits, including a tiebreaking single in Milwaukee's four-run eighth inning, to extend Pittsburgh's losing streak to five games.

Pittsburgh's Neftali Feliz (4-2) was charged with two runs, retiring only one of the three batters before leaving with right arm discomfort.

Red Sox 11, Athletics 2

In Oakland, Rick Porcello didn't allow a baserunner until Jake Smolinski's one-out double in the sixth on the way to his majors-leading 19th victory, and Boston routed Oakland yet again.

Porcello (19-3) gave up four hits and two runs in seven innings, struck out two and didn't walk a batter.

Braves 6, Phillies 4, 10 innings

In Philadelphia, Adonis Garcia scored the winning run in the 10th inning after homering twice earlier in the game, and Atlanta beat Philadelphia.

Jed Bradley (1-0) got the win in his major league debut. He threw one scoreless inning and had a strikeout.

Angels 10, Mariners 3

In Seattle, Kole Calhoun and Albert Pujols both homered twice, Mike Trout also went deep and Los Angeles beat Seattle.

Calhoun, Trout and Pujols hit consecutive home runs to lead a six-run first inning against starter Taijuan Walker (4-10).

Diamondbacks 9, Rockies 4

In Denver, Chris Owings had a career high-tying four hits, Jake Lamb homered and Arizona beat Colorado.

Braden Shipley (3-3) allowed four runs in 5 1/3 innings in his first time facing Colorado.

The Diamondbacks broke it open in the third off Tyler Chatwood (10-9). Welington Castillo had a three-run double and Lamb followed with his 27th homer to make it 6-0.

Chappell leads at TPC, boosts chances for first PGA win

NORTON, Mass. (AP)—Kevin Chappell made six birdies and an eagle Saturday and wound up with the lead at the Deutsche Bank Championship.

Nothing brought out more emotion than his only bogey.

Chappell missed the green well to the right on the 13th hole and with a far right pin, he didn't have much of a shot. He tried to chip it up the hill, only it came up short. He tried a flop that didn't quite stay on the green. And all he could think about was last week at Bethpage Black.

Chappell was in reasonable shape late in the second round at The Barclays when he finished bogey-double bogey-bogey. Instead of being one shot behind, he dropped four shots in three holes. At the TPC Boston, he wondered if he was headed down the same road.

Not this time. Chappell holed the 15-foot bogey putt, added two birdies and closed out a 7-under 64 for a one-shot lead at the halfway point.

"I was fighting some internal demons there," Chappell said. "I couldn't help but recall the same situation last Friday. To know that, refer to it and then not let it happen again is huge, and that's why you saw the emotion from me."

He was at 11-under 131, one shot ahead of PGA champion Jimmy Walker (64) and Paul Casey (66).

Dustin Johnson was poised to join Chappell in the lead until his long iron on the 18th sailed well right into the trees. He had to take a penalty drop, hit wedge on to about 45 feet and then three-putted for a double bogey. He still shot 66 and was three behind.

At least he still has a chance.

Phil Mickelson missed the cut for only the second time in a FedEx Cup playoff event, making a double bogey on his final hole for a 72. Jason Day, the world No. 1, took a quadruple-bogey 8 on the fifth hole and rallied to make the cut on the number.

The cut was at 1-under 141.

Also missing the cut was Bubba Watson, still hopeful of a captain's pick for the Ryder Cup. Justin Thomas also is trying to make a case, and Saturday didn't help the cause. His good start was wasted by a 40 on the back nine, which included two balls in the water for a triple bogey on the par-3 16th, and he wound up missing the cut.

Chappell nearly threw away a shot at the end. After a good drive on the 18th, he watched players in the group ahead struggle from the left of the green. Chappell figured his best chance was to lay up, but he hit it weak, the ball caught a gust of wind and it landed in the thick collar of a pot bunker.

His next shot made up for it, a wedge that jumped on him but still had enough height to settle about 15 feet away for par.

Chappell already has three runner-up finishes this summer (two of them to Day). He is patient about his prospect for that first PGA Tour victory, and it helps that he's having a career season. At No. 13 in the FedEx Cup, he is all but set to reach the Tour Championship for the first time.

US routs St. Vincent in World Cup qualifier

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Matt Besler got back to the U.S. team hotel after training on the eve of the United States' World Cup qualifier at St. Vincent and the Grenadines when his cellphone came to life.

"I had a message from my wife just saying, call me ASAP, and I had that feeling that something was happening," he said.

Back in Kansas City, Kansas, Amanda Besler felt her water break and went into labor two weeks early. On a Caribbean island, there was no way Matt Besler could return home quickly for the arrival of his first child.

Parker Rhea Besler was born at about 6:45 a.m. local time Friday. About nine hours later her daddy scored his first international goal, helping the United States to a 6-0 win that moved the Americans into prime position to advance to the final round of World Cup qualifying.

"I always knew that it was a risk coming down here," the 29-year-old Sporting Kansas City defender said. "At the same time, you have it," he said.

Besler was surrounded by a half dozen teammates in a rocking-the-cradle celebration reminiscent of Bebeto's at the 1994 World Cup. He had told U.S. coach Jurgen Klinsmann on Friday morning that he was in the right frame of mind to play.

"It's already a special day, but I wanted to even make it even more special and play in this special game," he remembered saying.

The 26th-ranked United States (3-1-1) is second in Group C behind Trinidad and Tobago (3-0-2), which tied visiting Guatemala (2-2-1) later Friday. With a plus-13 goal difference to Guatemala's plus-1, the Americans are virtually assured of reaching the final round hexagonal in North and Central America and the Caribbean when they host Trinidad on Tuesday at Jacksonville, Florida.

to live your life and come down here. There was about a 48-hour window where I knew that I was pretty much here and stuck here just due to the travel conditions. It would have been impossible to get back in time, and that's why I decided to stay. I was just going to try to make the best of it, and I'll get to meet my baby girl soon enough."

Christian Pulisic, the Americans' 17-year-old attacker, entered in the second half and scored twice off passes from Sacha Kljestan. Pulisic also set up Kljestan's first goal for the national team in six years.

Bobby Wood scored in the 28th minute, Besler doubled the lead in the 32nd and Jozy Altidore converted a penalty kick in the 43rd as the Americans built a 3-0 halftime lead at the Arnos Vale cricket ground.

Besler, who has three goals for Kansas City since joining the team in 2009, was making his 36th international appearance. He scored when MLS teammate Graham Zusi lofted a free kick, and Nazir McBernette's headed clearance attempt went toward the defender. Besler chested the ball and knocked it in with his left foot from about 4 yards.

"For what-ever reason, I could feel the ball gravitate to me at the back post, so I was ready for

Guam Ko'Ko Road Races set for Oct. 30

The Guam Visitors Bureau (GVB) has announced the 11th Annual Guam Ko'ko Road Races is now set for Halloween weekend at Governor Joseph Flores Memorial (Ypao Beach) Park. With an increased focus on entertainment for each race course, which consists of a half marathon, ekiden relay and the new 10K run/walk, the Ko'ko Road Races will be considered Guam's most fun run in 2016. This year's event set for Oct. 30 will also incorporate a costume theme and contest that will reward solo and relay runners for the most original, best superhero, or scariest costumes with cash prizes.

"The addition of the costume contest is an added incentive for our international and local runners to come together and celebrate the eleventh year of our GVB signature event," said GVB president and CEO Nathan Denight. "We look forward to Ko'ko Weekend because it caters to the entire family and takes sports tourism on island to new heights. We highly encourage all runners to register, learn more about our endemic Ko'ko bird and run in costume to win big."

A Post Race Monster Bash will begin immediately for participants and the public after runners complete the course, with vendors and live entertainment rounding out the Ko'ko festivities at Governor Joseph Flores Memorial (Ypao Beach) Park.

GVB also selected three new runners to be the official 2016 ambassadors for the Ko'ko Road Race. Also known as the "Ko'ko Krazies," the masked ambassadors will be training in the heart of Tumon until the event this October. The Ko'ko Krazies will be dressed in one of the three costume categories for the race—Most Original, Best Superhero and Scariest. Runners are encouraged to run with the Krazies, snap a photo and upload it to the event's Facebook page (@guamkokoroadrace) or GVB's Instagram (@visitguamusa) with the hashtag #kokotraining for a chance to win a free limited edition Ko'ko training tee, while supplies last.

The Guam Ko'ko Road Races includes three dynamic and distinct races in one—a half marathon course, a 10K Run/Walk course and a four-person Ekiden Relay race. From start to finish, the race courses will be filled with lively cheering groups, water stops and entertainment. The Guam Ko'ko Kids Fun Run will offer races for three specific age groups—a 3K for 10 to 12-year-olds, 2K for 7 to 9-year-olds and 1K for 4 to 6-year-olds the day before or on October 29. Space is limited to the first 500 registrants. Each finisher will receive a t-shirt and finisher's medal.

The Ko'ko Road Races help support the plight of Guam's territorial bird, the Guam rail or ko'ko bird—a flightless bird endemic to Guam. Race organizers work closely with the Department of Agriculture, Division of Aquatic and Wildlife Resources to raise awareness for the ko'ko bird. Che'lu is the official mascot for the Guam Rail and will be found interacting with children, big and small, to heighten their knowledge of the ko'ko bird.

Online registration is open at guamkokoroadrace.com. Follow the Guam Ko'ko Road Races and Guam Visitors Bureau on Facebook (@guamkokoroadrace), Instagram (@visitguamusa), Twitter and Snapchat (@visitguam) for the latest event updates and exclusive online promotions. This GVB event is proudly sponsored by KUAM, United Airlines, Pacific Islands Club, T Galleria by DFS, Project Inspire, Powerade, Fruita Plus and the Pacific Daily News. (PR) ley's nailed only four triples—a far cry from the 11 it buried in its 57-38 victory over JP Mambas last week. Aaron Pamintuan, who converted six treys in their victory over JP Mambas, was held to 4 points versus Fiesta, making only one field goal.

Shirley's had a lackluster offense midway in the first half, while Fiesta was on target right at the get-go and hit shots everywhere, allowing the defending champion to take a commanding 45-20 halftime advantage.

Paul Quizon, Jarette Matsutaro, Elmer Esdreton, and Fradel Sedillo worked together to lift Fiesta to the double-digit lead after the first half. Quizon started things off for his team, scoring 8, while Esdreton also heated up early, knocking in three triples. Matsutaro and Sedillo finished strong for Fiesta in the first half, combining for 13 of the team's last 15 markers in that period.

The lead ballooned to as high 52 in the second half, as Fiesta's offensive firepower proved too much for Shirley's, which had difficulty finding players to back up Jugos. Shirley's played in the playoffs without big man and scorer Eric Dela Rosa, who left for the U.S. late last month.

Matsutaro paced Fiesta's lopsided win, tallying 16, while round of the winner's bracket. The U.S. District Court was NIMO's next victim, while a victory over Commonwealth Utilities Corp. gave the eventual champion the first finals ticket and the twice-to-beat advantage that went with it.

Quizon and Tanner Maratita chipped in 14 and 11, respectively.

CUC, which arranged a meeting with NIMO for the first finals berth after topping DPS, 25-19, 25-21, dropped to the loser's bracket. CUC and DPS went on to collide anew for the last finals seat. DPS prevailed over Northern Marianas College and U.S. District Court to remain in contention and challenge CUC for a ride to the finals. DPS managed to deny CUC's another attempt to make it to the title game after registering a 25-19, 25-18 victory, before the former fell short in the finals against NIMO.

NIMO, besides the trio or Olopai, Taisacan, and Pelisamen, had eight other players on its roster. The list includes Ben Pelisamen, T.J. Eina, Nicole Saurez, Nish Wabol, Kimo Olopai, Meyer Jerome, Josiah Aldan, and Shiney Pelisamen.

Meanwhile, other participating teams in the three-day tournament were Department of Public Lands, Department of Fire and Emergency Management System, Bureau of Environmental & Coastal Quality, Commonwealth Ports Authority, Department of Corrections, Department of Public Works, and the Legislature.

In other results, Thailand is still undefeated in three games in Group A, while Laos (3-0-1) is in second place to remain in contention for a slot to the finals. Though only the top finisher in the pool will get the finals ticket, Laos can still make it, as Thailand has already won a spot to the finals along with China, North Korea, and Japan. Laos' rival for the finals ticket is Myanmar, which holds a 2-0-1 slate.

In Group C, Bangladesh is ahead with its 4-0-0 card against the identical 3-0-1 marks of Iran and Chinese-Taipei. In Group D, Australia has secured a finals berth as it finished the pool with an unblemished 5-0-0 record. Vietnam placed second with its 4-0-1 slate.

The CNMI U16 Girls National Team scored in its final game in the AFC U16 Women's Championships 2017 Qualifier last Saturday at the Luneng Football School in Weifang, China.

Guinevere Borja found the back of the net in the 34th minute to avert another shut-down for the CNMI, which failed to hit the board against the Philippines and South Korea after getting one goal in its debut (versus Malaysia) in the qualifier.

With Borja converting her shot, the Commonwealth bets were just down by one against India at the break, 1-2. India drew its two goals from forwards Soumya Guguloth and Renu, who lit up the board in the 16th and 24th minute, respectively. Guguloth also scored in the second half (67th minute), while India's other goal in the final 45 minutes of play came from another forward, Karishma.

Borja made his fourth start in as many games for the CNMI and was joined in the starting 11 by goalie Toremy Diaz, Princess Alcantara, Jerlyn Castillo, Anela Dueñas, Samantha Manacop, Lyka and Leisha Sally, Esther Jones, Gillian Villagomez, and Franchesca Bucalig. Erica Santiago, Jobelle Tabuena, and Patricia Surima were the substitutes.

Meanwhile, South Korea blanked the Philippines, 7-0, in the other Group B game last Saturday.

With the win, South Korea improved its win-draw-loss record to 3-0-0, while the Philippines fell to a 2-0-1 mark.

The South Koreans are likely to rule the group and win a slot to the finals. The pool leaders will play their last game today against the Northern Islands Mayor's Office bagged the championship in the CNMI Labor Day Indoor Volleyball Tournament held last week at the Gilbert C. Ada Gymnasium.

NIMO topped the 14-team competition after sweeping Department of Public Safety in the last Friday's finale, 25-22, 25-22. Ben Olopai and Freddie Pelisamen's powerful spikes off Valentino Taisacan's good setup jobs allowed NIMO to close out the title match early. NIMO, with its unbeaten record in the winner's bracket of the double-elimination playoffs, needed to win only once in the finals to rule the tournament that started last Wednesday.

NIMO went on to wrap up the finals right in Game 1 with the towering Olopai scoring the last two points for the winning squad. His return, which DPS anticipated to be a strong kill, turned out to be a tap with the ball dropping in front at an unguarded spot, moving NIMO within a point of taking the championship, 24-21. The high-leaping Pelisamen then attempted to end the match when he soared high near the net off a toss from Taisacan, but the former's spike was too strong and went off the sideline.

Pelisamen's error kept DPS' hopes alive, but not for long, as after a couple of returns, Taisacan set up Olopai for a spike. This time, the ball was in, dropping to the center of the backline with no DPS defender to receive it.

NIMO, aside from its finals win over DPS, recorded four other victories in the playoffs. It notched its first triumph over the Department of Community and Cultural Affairs and then downed Commonwealth Healthcare Corporation to advance to the third Fiesta Resort & Spa will have a chance to defend its title in the 2016 Tan Holdings Intercompany Basketball League after pummeling Shirley's Coffee Shop, 94-44, in last Friday's playoff match at the Gillette Multipurpose Gymnasium.

Fiesta, which topped three of the four editions of the league, including the last two, will face the undefeated and heavily favored Kanoa Resort in this Friday's championship showdown. Kanoa, with its unbeaten mark in the double-elimination playoffs, has a twice-to-beat advantage in the title duel.

A balance scoring in its do-or-die game against Shirley's allowed Fiesta to take the easy win and set up a finals meeting against Kanoa. Three Fiesta players broke into double figures, while eight others made it to the board and contributed at least 4 points each.

As for the Shirley's side,
